ATTEMPTED JURY BRIBER FOUND GUILTY

HEAD OF WRECKED BANK HYPNOTIZED TO GIVE UP MILLIONS

STRANGE POWER OF ADOLF SEGALOVER HIPPLE CAUSE OF FAILURE.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—Hypnotic influence is said to have been exerted constantly by Adolph Segal over Frank H. Hippie, the late president of the Real Estate Trust Company, which went to the wall yesterday with a shortage of $7,000,000 or more and about whose building excited crowds of depositors are clamoring to-day.

Segal could obtain anything he desired from Hippie and the friends of the late president said he seemed powerless to resist the blandishments of the hotel man and promoter. Segal says to-day that his indebtedness to the company is about $5,000,000, and covered by collateral easily worth $8,000,000.

Segal's career has been meteoric. Many years ago he came from Austria a poor man. He became a promoter. He built a sugar refining plant and sold it to the Sugar Trust.

Finding this a profitable game he built a match works and sold it to the Diamond Match Company at a profit. Recently Segal went into the steel business and sugar business. The refinery on which so much money was spent has never been operated.

Advanced Him $5,300,000.

Receiver George H. Earle of the Real Estate Trust Company says that Hippie advanced to Segal about $5,300,000 for the projection of some of his enterprises. Segal says regarding his indebtedness:

"My business relations with Mr. Hippie were only those of a borrower. The loans of money made by the trust company to me were all made on collateral in the usual course of business. I cannot tell the exact amount of my indebtedness and that of the companies with which I am associated, but it surely is not over half the amount stated. I think it is about $5,000,000.

"Mr. Hippie was not personally interested with me in any of my enterprises to the extent of a dollar or a share of stock.

"For all my indebtedness the trust company is insured by collateral worth from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000. This collateral consists largely of first mortgage bonds on my various properties. I am convinced their full value will be realized."

TO MEET ALL CLAIMS.

Receiver Earle to-day went before Judge Audenried and qualified for the position.

It is Mr. Earle's opinion that the concern will soon resume in some shape or other, as the directors have concluded to meet all claims of depositors. Mr. Earle, however, impressed upon his interviewers the fact that he had had no opportunity to get an insight of the affairs of the concern, and until he had gone carefully over the accounts, securities and outstanding bonds he would not be able to discuss details. That he had sudden responsibility upon he act as receiver, he pointed out, was clear from the fact that he did not even have time to qualify before to-day.

Not the slightest suspicion of any unsoundness of the institution was entertained in financial circles prior to Mr. Hippie's sudden death, but within a few hours thereafter the disclosure was made that through Mr. Hippie the bank had made loans to Adolf Segal alone to the enormous amount of $5,300,000.

The enormity of the transactions with Mr. Segal was not known to the directors or any other of the bank's officers, as Mr. Hippie had kept the details a secret. In addition to the Segal loans there were others of about $2,000,000 that had been granted by the president without the knowledge of the directors.

Early to-day the crowds gathered at the bank to learn what they could of the condition of the institution. The probable suicide of President Frank H. Hippie at his home last Friday, when he took laudanum and was found in a bathing, first caused the depositors to feel that their savings were in danger.

At the bank, from the outside, little or nothing could be learned. Excitement grew as the people were unable to find out how badly the bank is tally involved.

"Kill the officers saw and investigate later," shouted a excited man in the crowd.

A big reserve policeman calmed the excited mob and took its away. Other remarks of a similar nature were heard, and detective Donoghy set a dozen plain clothes men to the save. A big reinforcement to the police and was also made.

Many aged clergmen are among those who lost their money, and they are left destitute by the institution's failure.

POORLY PLACED LOANS.

Money loaned a insufficient securities, much of it to Promoter Segal, together with Hippie's own dealings, in the direct cause of the wreck of the bank, which has for years been considered one of the strongest financial institutions in the city.

Mr Hippie had inaugurated a system by which the cashiers of the directors was completely was there being an expert auditor employed by the bank whose business it was to give a detailed accounting of the busines at the close of business hours daily.

This report of the auditor was regularly submitted deer by the auditor himself to Mr. Hippie and it was only discovered after the president's death that he kept the auditor's report for his personal use while he made another for the Board of Directors, which he an expert accountant, fixed up to hide such transactions as he saw fit.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church had various sums of money in the defunct institution, in the names of the Board of Relief and the Presbytery of Philadelphia. The total of theses funds amount to about $25,000. There are also securities of almost $1,000,000 in the bank in the name of the General Assembly.

CHURCH FUNDS IN DOUBT.

It is or positively known whether or not these are intact, or whether they might not have been hypothecated or transferred.

Dr. Roberts, clerk of the Assembly, and a close friend of Mr. Hippie, is greatly shocked over the possible loss of these funds and also grieved at the death of President Hippie.

Investigation of the bank's condition started on Monday and the officers worked night and day after that along. At least $100,000 was deposited on that day, and consider able amount was withdrawn.

Hippie, in addition to being president of the Real Estate Trust Company, was treasurer of the board of trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, and of several other church funds and was a director of the Franklin National Bank. Recently Mr. Hippie's accounts of the Presbyterian Church were examined by certified accountants and were said to be correct.

The board of publication of the Presbyterian Church, which had between $18,000 and $20,000 on deposit, made an effort to withdraw the money, but failed by three minutes. Hearing rumors of the unstable condition of the Trust Company, the church officials intended to transfer the account to the Philadelphia National Bank. A representative of the latter barged to the office of the Trust Company, but arrived there after the doors had closed.

East Dedham Court Decides Unregistered RACE BETS LAWFUL

Judge Plympton Discharges Men Held on Readville Charges.

Not Proven That the Defendants Sold Pools or Registered Wagers.

In the East Dedham District Court today Judge Harrison S. Plympton decided that bets between individuals, which were not registered, were not against the law, and he discharged Ernest A. Fuching of Waltham, Morris M. Welch of Indian, Thomas H. Flynn of Lowell and George H. Rouse of Medford, who had been arrested on last Friday at the Readville Trotting Park by Arthur G. Webbs of the State police on a charge of betting and pool selling in violation of the law.

In rendering his decision Judge Plympton said: "I shall try to give my decision reasonably for both sides. Under Section 30 of Chapter 214 of the Revised Laws, and Section 37, these men have not been proven guilty. Under those laws they could make bets, but they could not sell pools nor register any bets. This would be in violation to the laws cited. Registering of bets is an original offense and would not be allowed. But it has not been proved that they sold pools, nor did they register bets. The defendants are discharged."

Attorney Jeremiah W. McAnarney of Quincy was in the courtroom, which was crowded, when Judge Plympton rendered his decision. When the cases of the four defendants were heard yesterday in the East Dedham court, Attorneys McAnarney and Henry H. Fuller, representing the New England Horse Breeders' Association, appeared for the defendants and argued their cases.

The government was represented at the hearing by George C. Neal of Lynn, deputy chief of the State police. The facts in the case were not disputed. Furching and Welch had made a bet, Welch betting on a horse of which he was a part owner. The bet was written on a piece of paper and this form in turn, and each man took a part. It was denied that this was recording a bet. Messrs. Rouse and Flynn had bet on a horse. One wrote down the terms of the bet on a card and showed it to the other and then pocketed the card. It was contended that this was not a record or register of a bet, and in both cases the Judge to-day decided for the defendants.

THINK WOMAN, ILL, A SUICIDE

Death by drowning in the verdict of Medical Examiner Swan in the case of the fate of a woman found in the Charles River early to-day. It is presumed that the woman ended her life because of her fear of consumption, from which Mr. Swan says she was a sufferer. The woman was apparently about forty years old. Nothing on her clothing would identify her identity. The body will be taken to the receiving tomb in the Cambridge cemetery, and the clothing held for identification.

Thomas Gallegher and John Phan saw the body as it drifted with the tide. They secured a boat, brought it ashore and notified the police.

The woman weighed 125 pounds. Four of her upper teeth were missing. She was clad in a blue jacket, black shirt and low shoes of poor material. She was evidently but well to do, judging from the texture of her clothing.

CZAR SENDS BUTCHERS TO "PACIFY WARSAW"

GEN. ORLOFF, IN BALTIC PROVINCE HORROR, MAY LEAD CRUSADE.

WARSAW, Poland, Aug. 29.—The most rigorous repressive measures yet resorted to by the government in dealing with the revolution are to be instituted in Warsaw. Orders have been received from St. Petersburg to begin a ruthless crusade to stamp out the terrorists, whose activity has thrown the city into a panic.

What amounts practically to the establishment of martial law is to be tried. Soldiers are to supercede the police, and troublemakers will be dealt with severely. All the streets will be guarded by troops, and every person suspected of having revolutionary sympathies will be arrested and held indefinitely.

Shoot to Kill.

Orders to shoot to kill whenever they are molested in the slightest manner have been issued to the soldiers and they are to receive war pay in order to make them merciless in the discharge of the duty of being public butchers placed upon them.

General Orloff, who "pacified" the Baltic provinces in the outbreaks there a year ago, is rumored to have been directed by the czar to take command of the troops in Warsaw. The very mention of his name in this connection has inspired the people with horror. In the terrible work he carried out by Orloff against the revolutionists in the Baltic region over 1,200 persons were killed, many of them shot down without provocation.

Dread Reign of Terror.

Warsaw dreads a worse reign of terror with him in command of the troops which are to "restore order" than has prevailed with the terrorists doing about as they pleased.

Revolutionists are to be hunted down like wild animals under the new programme decided upon for the "pacifying of Warsaw." A band of detectives has been sent here from St. Petersburg to find the headquarters of the revolutionists.

"No mercy" is the new motto of the authorities.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT SHOWS A.O.H. PROGRESS

FALL RIVER, Aug. 29.—The two great events for two years of A.O.H. state conventions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians enthusiastically began to-day the real labors which they are here to perform. Business is being conducted with rapidity and entire absence of differences. The reports of State President Matthew Cummings was read by the presiding officer himself and his enthusiastic adherence to the cause of the Hibernians was warmly applauded. He said in part:

"We have tried to keep in touch with every movement of interest to our society, and as a result A. O. H. influence and prestige is greater to-day than it has ever been in our history. We were determined that progress and business-like methods must prevail, also that any encroachment upon our rights as Catholics and every insult to our people would be resented, and that discrimination against persons seeking employment, Americans of Irish blood and extraction, because of their religion and nationality, must cease. We can report to this convention that we have been very successful in stamping out this kind of discrimination.

"The assessment levied in 1904 was on 28,330 members. The total membership July 1, 1906, was 27,862, making an in-

"I am much pleased to say that the reports to be submitted to your committees will prove that the order has made rapid strides on the road to progress. The term just ended has been the most successful in the history of the order in this State. We are to-day a great Catholic society of Irishmen working for the advancement of the principles of Irish nationality, ready to guard the welfare of this republic and to develop all that tends to the advancement of the Irish race.

"We have organized sixteen new divisions, also two divisions of boy cadets, one in Plymouth county and one in Worcester county.

"Our labors in the form of benevolence have carried peace and happiness to many homes. We have paid in the past two years for sick and death benefits more than $100,000 in this State. The total receipts for the term was $400,000, the total expenditures were $298,000. The total assets of the order in this State in money, real estate and personal property are $457,271.06.

"During the past two years, and through the influences of our organization, great progress has been made in the pushing of Irish history in our Catholic and public schools. Of late than one-half the Catholic schools in this State have included Irish history in their course of studies. We should not stop until every Catholic school in this State will teach the history of Ireland to every child of Irish parentage attending their school."

MORAN SAYS 'ALLIANCE' TALES ARE FALSEHOODS

DECLARES THAT HE WILL NOT TRY TO DICTATE REST OF STATE TICKET.

District Attorney John B. Moran to-day hailed as a lie any or all stories that he will try to dictate the rest of the State ticket which he is to head. He said:

"I have made and will make no alliance with any candidate for any office. The members of my campaign committee John F. Feeney, Granville S. MacFarland and my brother, Alonzo B. Moran, will not publicly or privately, favor or oppose the candidacy of any man for other places on the ticket.

"The delegates in the convention must be allowed to make their own selection. Here before candidates on the State ticket have been selected with reference to their ability to contribute to the campaign fund. Now they must be chosen by the delegates."

QUINCY'S PARTNER SAYS HE IS TO VOTE FOR MORAN

Schoolhouse Commissioner Thomas A. Mullen, private secretary to Josiah Quincy, when the latter was Mayor of Boston, and his present law partner, announced to-day that he would vote for John B. Moran for Governor whether or not the latter secured the Democratic nomination.

"I voted for the Hon. Joshua Lovering, the Prohibitionist candidate for President in 1888 and therefore would not be inconsistent in supporting the Prohibitionist candidate for Governor in 1906," said Mr. Mullen to-day.

STRUCK IN PLANING MILL; BADLY HURT

Arthur S. Hathaway, aged twenty-two years, single, living at No. 109 Blue Hill avenue, while working in his father's planing mill at No. 51 Bristol street to-day was struck in the abdomen by a flying piece of wood as it left the planer. The young man was seriously injured internally. He was taken to his home in an ambulance by the police of the East Dedham street station.

"Dr." Walter Clark Sentenced to Two Years in State Prison by Judge Harris in Superior Court To-day—No Appeal.

"Dr." Walter F. Clark was found guilty by Judge Harris in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court to-day of contempt of court in attempting to bribe Juror Alfred M. Green in the trial of "Dr." John Sinclair, and was sentenced to two years at hard labor in the State prison.

William Washington and Israel Rue, colored, residents of the South End, who were charged with being concerned in the attempted bribery, were fined $50 each.

As all three cases are of contempt of court there is no appeal from Judge Harris's decisions.

TRIAL SUDDENLY HALTS.

"Dr." Sinclair is on trial on a charge of causing the death of Miss Annie Russell of Charlestown by an illegal operation. The jury disagreed once. The second trial was begun last week. It came to an a statement of Juror Green to the statement of Juror Green to the court that he had been offered $50 to vote for Sinclair's acquittal. Since then everything has been subordinated to clearing up the bribery case.

Clark lived in the West Springfield street house where Sinclair practiced. He was the star witness for the government against Sinclair. He testified at the first trial that he was promised immunity by the District Attorney's office if he would testify against Sinclair. It was his testimony against Sinclair that alone prevented an acquittal for the latter instead of a disagreement at the first trial. When the second trial began Clark was summoned from Canada to testify again.

Clark was arrested the same day that Juror Green made his report of an attempt to bribe him. Later in the same day William Washington was arrested.

OFFERED $50 BRIBE.

At the hearing on the bribery charges yesterday Juror Green testified that Washington was the man who came to his house and said Green could get $50 for voting to acquit Sinclair.

Then William Washington testified, practically confessing his share in the transaction and implicating Israel Rue, who had not been mentioned in the case before. Washington said that Rue had approached him on the street and asked him, as a favor, to go to Juror Green and make the $50 offer. Washington said that he did so, but that Green declined the money.

Then Rue was brought into custody and held in $10,000 bail on the same charges with Clark and Washington.

When Rue hearing was resumed to-day Washington was called to the stand again. He positively identified Rue as the man who sent him up to Juror Green with the bribe offer.

Woman Declares She Gave False Testimony

LIED TO SAVE DOCTOR

Last photograph ever taken of Maud Taggert, for whose death Dr. Briggs is on trial.
Woman witness told court Dr. Briggs said, "We must agree on a plausible story of girl's death."

Mrs. Belle M. Wesley Passes Through Cross Examination Unshaken.

Sensation in Trial of Dr. Briggs, Charged with Causing Maine Girl's Death.

Special to the Boston American.

BANGOR, Me., Aug. 29.—Declaring that she had testified falsely before the coroner's jury to shield Dr. William H. R. Briggs, on trial here in the Superior Judicial Court before Judge Powers, charged with causing the death of Miss Maud H. Taggert, through illegal treatment, Mrs. Belle M. Wesley, at whose home the girl had died, passed through the scathing cross-examination of Judge Louis C. Stearns, unshaken.

The woman's testimony came as the climax to a day of excitement yesterday. The best male friend of the girl, young Rosie, had told that Dr. Briggs had said that they must all stick to one story. Then came Mrs. Wesley, with precisely the same testimony.

Today Judge Stearns, counsel for the fashionable doctor who is on trial, put Mrs. Wesley on the rack in a fierce storm of questions, some of which altered her statements of yesterday.

It was at the home of Mrs. Wesley that Miss Maud H. Taggert, the beautiful young girl victim of Dr. Briggs's alleged illegal treatment died on March 1, 1905.

Contradicted Her Testimony.

Her direct and cross examination occupied the entire afternoon and at its close the State's case appeared to be immensely strengthened.

Mrs. Wesley said that previous to her first meeting with Maud Taggett she had known Dr. Briggs for one month and that he had begged her to open a hospital, saying that he would furnish the patients. Witness told of how on February 24 last Dr. Briggs came to her, saying that he had a girl under treatment and asking that witness take her in.

This was agreed to. Dr. Briggs promising to pay $2 a day for the service, and the patient (Maud Taggett) was received by witness. Dr. Briggs said that the girl was in critical condition but did not disclose the nature of her trouble.

The patient grew rapidly worse after Sunday night and on Tuesday she died.

"Did he say when he gave the treatment?"

"He said on Saturday forenoon."

"Where?"

"That he did not tell me."

"Prior to this time was there anything said concerning what you should do in the girl died?"

"He said we must agree upon a plausible story."

Judge Stearns for the defense sharply cross-examined witness, but was unable to shake her testimony on any material point. Cross-examination was still in progress when court adjourned.

BRYAN MEN PAY WARM TRIBUTE TO MR. HEARST

"We Admire Your Position and Your Persistency," Says Their Spokesman.

EDITOR TELLS REAL ISSUE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Nebraska's greetings to William Randolph Hearst were extended to the leader of the Independence League at the meeting of that body yesterday morning by the committee of "Bryan's home folk," who have come to New York to welcome William Jennings Bryan on his return from abroad.

Secretary D. N. Fletcher, of the Democratic State Committee, of Florida; former Governor William S. Jennings, and other Florida delegates also paid their respects to Mr. Hearst at the American office.

"We appreciate the position you have taken," said Judge Edgar Howard, of Columbus, who acted as the chief spokesman for the Nebraskan party, "and the reforms you have brought about."

Later on in the conversation Judge Howard said: "We are here because we admire your position and your persistency. All Bryan men appreciate your loyalty and persistency."

Among all of the members of the delegation there were expressions of satisfaction over the meeting at the Waldorf dinner, which ended in Mr. Hearst's announcement of his intention to attend the Bryan reception at Madison Square Garden on Thursday night.

Makes Position Clear.

After the departure of the guests, Mr. Hearst met a number of newspaper men in the corridor of the Gilsey House, and in addition to defining his attitude toward the Bryan reception, took occasion to make his position additionally clear with reference to the New York State campaign.

"Is there anything in the report of a coolness between you and Mr. Bryan?" Mr. Hearst was asked.

"There is none on my part, was the reply. "And none on Mr. Bryan's, unless he has changed his mind since he went to Europe. He wrote congratulating me upon the run I made last election. Reports of any disagreement between Mr. Bryan and myself are unfounded."

"Are you going to the Bryan reception?" asked one of the reporters.

"Yes, I think I shall," said Mr. Hearst, and then he added: "So far as my relations with the reception movement are concerned, I can say only that the Independence League is composed of both Democrats and Republicans, and I had some doubts as to the propriety of the League's taking an official part in the reception to Mr. Bryan, but personally, as an American citizen, I shall call upon Mr. Bryan, and I shall also attend the meeting, but not representing the League."

Upon the political situation in New York Mr. Hearst said, in reply to a question as to who he really thought about the candidacy of District Attorney Jerome for the Governorship:

"I think Mr. Jerome is doing what he was told to do by the interests to which he is under obligation, and which controlled to his campaign. Their object is to create a diversion, so that there will not be a very great volume of public sentiment as to the real issue.

Criminal Bosses the Real Issue.

"The real issue is whether the people shall control politics, independent of the dictation of corrupt corporations through criminal bosses.

"I am not surprised that Mr. Jerome is doing as he is told, for his course in office shows that he has more regard for those interests than he has for the people."

"Do you think it possible for Mr. Jerome to get the Democratic nomination?" Mr. Hearst was asked.

"If Mr. Belmont and Mr. Ryan control the convention, I should say it is not only possible but probable."

"What is there in the report that you have not understanding with Governor H. Murphy?" asked the reporter.

"That statement is not before very clearly," replied Mr. Hearst. "I don't believe Mr. Murphy is for me now, or that he will be at the critical moment. When you go out after a man's scalp it is not likely that he will be for you."

"Would you accept the nomination of the Democratic convention, Mr. Hearst?" asked the reporter in conclusion.

"I will be the candidate of the Independence League if I run," was the reply. "But I certainly shall not object to Democrats or others voting for me."

FIND BODY OF WIFE BEATER.

'HAVEMEYER TRAMP' FOUND THE PATE DE FOIE GRASS DELICIOUS

"JOE" MILLER," "HAVEMEYER TRAMP."

The above photograph of the aesthic "Knight of the Road," who regaled himself on the viands he found in a Newport millionaire's pantry, was taken after he had attired himself in haberdasheric of his absent host.

But the Rudeness of the Butler Marred the Pleasure of the Occasion.

"Joe" Miller of Boston Tells Jailer How He Happened Upon the Feast.

Special to the Boston American.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 29.—While pursuing the simple life in the county jail during a six months' sentence for vagrancy, "Joe" Miller, the Boston tramp, is consoled by the recollection of the one gilt-edged, eighteen karat meal he had in Harry O. Havemeyer's pantry.

Asked by the judge in the local court why he did not go to work, "Joe" cheerfully replied: "What's the use when Rockefeller has all the money?"

This same cheerful philosophy is found in "Joe's" account to the jailer of how he was a self-invited guest of the Havemeyers.

"Boston's all very well," says Joe, "but it's awful in the silly season. Positively, y' know, everyone's out of town. William Dean Howells was right when he said in 'The Rise of Silas Lapham' that all one saw up and down Commonwealth avenue was a succession of shuttered windows and boarded-up doorways. The Storers, the Higginsons, the Talbots, why in fact, everybody is out of town and it's tiresome. At the club there's no one but the waiters.

Feasted on Pate de Foie Gras.

"So I came to Newport, which is still entertaining, though we all know it isn't what it used to be before the new-rich got in. Well, I rose the next morning, and after a simple breakfast strolled out along Bellevue avenue. I thought I would drop in on Harry—Havemeyer, y' know—but I didn't find any one about.

"Knowing how informal people are in the Summer season, I thought I would come in anyhow; in fact, I even went around the back way, just to make no trouble. I went in the back door, and while passing through the dining room noticed the butler's pantry.

"It was that pate de foie gras. I just dote on pate. And it's almost impossible to get it properly served, y' know, except in one's own home. I caught sight of this pate in the pantry, and just couldn't resist taking a bite, knowing Harry wouldn't mind.

"I looked about by myself, not wishing to trouble anyone. I found a bit of a joint and a bottle of seltzer and some old Scotch and arranged myself just the daintiest bit of a lunch you ever saw.

Butler Was Impertinent.

"I was thinking how the folks at home would like to be with me when in comes the butler.

"If the butler had been respectful, I would have explained and waited till Harry came home. But he was really impertinent. If I had been roughly dressed, or anything, I wouldn't have minded so much. But I had just stocked up with some new clothes, right here in Newport, yes, and was quite irreproachable.

"I made no argument with the butler. It is bad form to engage in controversy with a servant. I just went along with him and accepted the situation with my usual savoir faire.

"But I shall speak to Harry when I see him again about his butler being impertinent. He would consider it unfriendly to him if I did not."

CHURCH LAW STOPS WEDDING RECALL CARDS

Divorce Figures in Surprise of Catholic Young Woman's Announcement.

WORCESTER, Aug. 29.—After their marriage banns have been twice published in St. Stephen's church, Miss Anne Glenier of No. 31 Orient street, this city, today says that she will refuse to wed Isadore Roberts, of Manchester, N. H. Roberts has paid ardent attention to Miss Glenier, who is one of the popular belles of the French quarter of the city, and their romance was the subject of considerable interest.

It now transpires that Roberts has been married before, and has been divorced from his wife, who is still living. According to the tenets of the Catholic faith, of which both Roberts and Miss Glenier are adherents, Roberts cannot marry again so long as his divorced wife lives. The invitations to the wedding which were sent out some time ago have been recalled.

SAY MRS. TENNYSON PROPOSED TO "FIX UP" BROTHER'S COLOR

Attempt to Perpetrate Insurance Fraud by Substitution Say Insurance Agents.

Doctors Declare Husky Sailor Was Examined for Consumptive Griffin.

There will be a resumption to-day at 2 o'clock of the hearing on the alleged wholesale attempt to procure life insurance policies by substitution of another person for the examination and otherwise "fixing it up," testified to by many agents and medical examiners of the city yesterday before Judge Bolster in the Municipal Court, in the case of Mrs. Mary A. Tennyson and her brother, Dennis Griffin, who are charged with compounding a forgery and abetting the escape of William Nelson, a seasor, who is said to have been used in the substitution for examination for policies for Griffin.

Mrs. Tennyson is a wealthy widow and proprietor of a number of North End lodging houses. She and her brother live at 284 Commercial street, where Nelson, the codefendant, resided while not at sea.

Took $3,000 Policies.

The applications for policies, which were usually for $3,000, by Griffin or in his behalf, were to the Boston Mutual Life, the State Mutual, the Columbian National, the John Hancock and the New York Life insurance companies.

Allison A. Parker, an agent for the John Hancock Company, testified that he had arranged with Mrs. Tennyson to issue a policy on the life of Griffin for $3,000 with the Boston Mutual Life, and that such a policy was duly signed by a person whom she introduced as her brother, but who was afterwards ascertained to be a William Nelson.

The company refused the risk, but subsequently a policy was secured from the New York Life and Nelson signed the same Griffin.

Not the Same Man.

Dr. William E. Boardman of 288 Marlboro street, a medical examiner of the State Mutual Life Insurance Company, testified that he examined a man claiming to be Dennis Griffin, but who was altogether different in appearance from the defendant.

F. R. Champlin of Revere, supervising agent of the inspection department of the Boston Mutual, said Mrs. Tennyson showed him the two policies of the Mutual Life for $3,000 each, and said her brother's health was not good and she wanted the policies made valid.

Offers $10 for Change.

"She said," testified Dr. Champlin, "she would give $200 to have the discrepancies in the two policies corrected, and asked if the clerk at the home office would make the corrections without bringing them to the attention of the officials for $5 or $10."

Dr. John A. Creevey of 11 Parmenter street, S. B., examined Griffin July 12, and found him in very poor health. "Mrs. Tennyson told me she wanted to have him 'fixed up' for a life insurance policy so the difference in color would not be noticed."

STAMP CARRIED DOLLAR.

NATION TO-DAY GIVES BRYAN WELCOME HOME

Partisan Feeling Forgotten in Greeting to Distinguished American.

PRESIDENT TAKES A HAND

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—The United States with New York in the lead to-day extends its welcome to William Jennings Bryan upon his return from abroad. Partisan feeling has been forgotten and the demonstration upon the incoming will compare favorably with the greetings given him in former years.

President Roosevelt knows, and in the plans and directed the authorities of the port of New York to suspend the rule prohibiting the landing of visitors at quarantine in order that Mrs. Bryan and Miss Bryan may be permitted to come ashore from the Princess Irene with Mr. Bryan.

Plan of Meeting Arranged.

According to the plans arranged by the Commercial Travelers' Anti Trust League the Princess Irene is not to dock at Quarantine or the private wharf (Hall, owned by Edward F. Atkins), but will go to a point in front of Mr. Bryan and the Bryan party will be transferred immediately from the liner to the tender, which will cruise about until 10 o'clock Thursday afternoon, the hour fixed for the official landing and reception by the Hotel Victoria, where the reception will be held. At 3 o'clock the landing will be made at the battery. There the welcoming committee will be met by Acting Mayor Mc. Gowan, Governor Foss, Mr. Bryan's, Will liam Hoge of the Commercial Travelers' Anti Trust League and others, and with them will enter carriages for the drive up to the Hotel Victoria, where rooms have been engaged for the Bryan party.

The reception will take place almost immediately after the arrival at the hotel. Five representatives from each State that has sent delegates to the convention will receive Mr. Bryan and the general public will be admitted until 6 o'clock. Carriages

Escorted to Apartments.

At this hour Mr. Bryan will be escorted to his apartments where he will rest until 7 o'clock, at which time he will walk over to Madison Square Garden, escorted by a platoon of policemen and followed by the various State delegations.

Harry Walker will call the meeting in the garden to order and will introduce Governor Foss, who will in turn introduce Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland as permanent chairman of the gathering.

DEATH OF LEAH BARRETT ADDS TO SALEM MYSTERY

HER DEATH ADDS TO MARRIAGE MYSTERY.

Youth Accused of Beguiling Her Into Mock Marriage Still Faces Trial.

SALEM, Aug. 29.—The death of Miss Leah Barrett, the young woman who accused Edward P. Burney of Lynn of beguiling her into a mock marriage last autumn, and who was plaintiff in a suit against him, charging this, further complicates a case already surrounded with mystery. Miss Barrett died yesterday at the home of her mother, No. 153 Bridge street.

Burney is under bonds of $2,000 to appear for trial, which has been continued from time to time, and is now set for September 5, as each time it was called Miss Barrett was reported to be too sick to appear.

June 2 last Burney appeared in the District Court here, charged with giving false information to City Clerk Eatwell in regard to his marriage certificate. He was found guilty and fined $5.

Miss Barrett's story told to the police was that on S. 1905, she had driven with Burney to the house of a justice of the peace named Cole, in Lynn, and there went through with what she supposed was a marriage ceremony, but which she became satisfied eight months later was a mock marriage.

Burney denied that there was any ceremony at all, real, farcical or otherwise. Cole denied performing the simple Barney was arrested July 19 and arraigned in the District Court on the charge of criminal attack, pleading not guilty.

STOVE POLISH EXPLODES; SAY GIRL WILL DIE

Five Others Badly Burned, Fou. While Attempting to Save Woman.

WERE CLEANING STOVE

WORCESTER, Aug. 29.—One woman is dying at the city hospital and five other persons are suffering from painful burns as the result of a stove polish explosion in the home of Oscar Anderson, No. 44 North Ashland street, last night.

Mrs. Anderson, with her sister, Miss Hannah Lagland, was cleaning a stove, when the polish exploded. Miss Lagland ran into the street, a mass of fire. John Stahberg, who was passing, attempted to extinguish the flames, but was himself badly burned. Thomas Howard, a fireman, and Walter Curtis then tried to smother the flames with their coats, but were too late, for Miss Lagland was burned. An ambulance was called and Miss Lagland was taken to the City Hospital, where it is said she cannot live.

In the meantime, Mr. Anderson had sprung to the assistance of his wife and pulled her from the flames over the stove. Both were badly burned.

The national government should feed all poor children. The Countess of Warwick then says their dietary is the nation's concern. A most spirited plea by one of the most beautiful of the British aristocracy and King Edward's personal friend, in next SUNDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN.

WORKMEN CHOP OUT WATERTOWN 'PHONES

Blundering workmen engaged in tearing down the old bridge between Newton and Watertown cut a number of 700 telephone wires and every telephone in Watertown was put out of business yesterday afternoon, and will remain such until noon to-day. Besides the Watertown system, all the trunk lines connecting Newton with Cambridge, Waltham, Melrose, Malden and Somerville were demolished. Superintendent of Streets W. T. Learned of Watertown is directing the men on the bridge.

SCALY ECZEMA ALL OVER BODY

Eruptions Appeared on Chest, and Face and Neck Were All Broken Out—Scales and Crusts Formed—Iowa Lady Has Great Faith in Cuticura Remedies for Skin Diseases.

ANOTHER WONDERFUL CURE BY CUTICURA

"I had an eruption appear on my chest and body and extend upwards when I was pregnant. My neck and face were all broken out; also my arms and the lower limbs as far as the knees. I at first thought it was heat rash. But soon scales or crusts formed where the breaking out was. Instead of going to a physician I purchased a complete treatment of the Cuticura Remedies, in which I had great faith, and all was satisfactory. A year or more after the eruption appeared again, only a little lower; but before it had time to spread I procured another supply of the Cuticura Remedies, and continued their use until the cure was complete. It is now five years since the last attack, and have not seen any signs of it return. I have taken about three bottles of the Cuticura Resolvent, and do not know how much of the Soap and Ointment, as I always keep them with me; probably one half dozen of each.

"I decided to give the Cuticura Remedies a trial after I had seen the results of their treatment of eczema on an infant belonging to one of my lady boarders. The parent took the child to the nearest physician, but his treatment did no good. So they procured the Cuticura Remedies and cured her with them. When they began using Cuticura Remedies her face was terribly disfigured with sores, and she was crying cured, for I saw the same child at the age of five years, and her mother told me the eczema had never broken out since. I have more faith in Cuticura Remedies for skin diseases than anything I know of. I am, respectfully yours, Emma E. Wilcox, Monticello, Iowa, Oct. 1, 1905."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor, from Pimples to Scrofula, from Infancy to Age, consisting of Cuticura Soap, 25c., Ointment, 50c., Resolvent, 50c. ASKS POLICE TO FIND HUSBAND

Weak and hungry, Mrs. Frederick W. Ferris of No. 140 Franklin street, Cambridge, appeared before Lieutenant Coary at Station 2 yesterday and asked the assistance of the police in finding her husband. She said she had deserted her on Aug. 8, to live among Mrs. Ferris carried a two weeks old child, which had been born only a few days after her husband left. She was without money or food, and but for the attentions of neighbors would have starved. Her husband is a horseshoer by trade and she thinks he may have gone to New York in search of work, though letters written to his relatives there failed to bring any reply.

MISS WILLS IN DOCTOR'S CARE

Constant attendance of a physician is required by Miss Edith Russell Wills, the fiancee of the late Captain Nathan Appleton, who was presented in her home in New Hampshire since the funeral yesterday at King's Chapel.

"Captain Appleton's will has not yet been opened," said his sister, Mrs. S. Greeley Curtis, last night. "I do not know the provisions of it yet, and until I do I cannot say whether I shall contest it or not." There is considerable speculation as to the exact amount and its disposition.

It is not known definitely who has the will but it is reported upon the best of authority that it is in possession of Miss Wills.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 29.—Charles M. Oelrichs, the well known clubman and athlete, had to summon assistance when in bathing yesterday. He swam out as usual and was having a severe battle with the waves to get in when he asked Davis Barnes, another clubman who was with him, to call for the lifeboat.

The life guard hurried to Mr. Oelrichs's aid, took him into their boat and brought him in to the sand. After a little rest Mr. Oelrichs was himself again.

TIRE MAKERS WILL LIKELY CUT PRICES

Agreement Between the Companies Expires Soon, and Lower Rates Are Expected.

BY J. C. KERRISON.

A battle royal between the tire manufacturing companies of this country will unquestionably be inaugurated on Saturday next. At midnight Friday the agreement now existing between the companies, by many called a trust, will expire, and thereafter no more royalties will be collectable. This, in the minds of many, means a renewal of hostilities, such, for instance, as those which were in vogue among the manufacturers in the palmy days of racing. For several years the tire manufacturers have had things pretty nearly their own way, owing to their strong organization. The future will unquestionably see a different story. While all of the local managers denied that they have any knowledge of a decrease in price following upon the dissolution of the trust, for such it must be termed, there is a general impression that a reduction in price will be announced by all of the companies within a very few days.

It is known that in at least four instances prospective purchasers have been advised to delay placing orders or buying new stocks until after January 1. This can mean but one thing—a reduction, slight though perhaps it may be, in the cost of tires. There are many things to indicate that a reduction in prices will be announced, and I predict that within the next week the retail price of shoes and inner tubes will take a drop of from 5 to 10 per cent; that the local manufacturers and dealers will drop from 10 to 20 per cent., possibly 15, but under no circumstances will the first drop be greater than 20 per cent. to the dealers and 10 to the consumers.

This announcement will rather surprise the local dealers, as in their talk with me yesterday each and every one of them rather discredited the idea of a reduction in price. Still it will come and come within a few days is my idea. There can be no gain without a certain amount of loss, and that loss is not by any means going to be the manufacturers'. The loss will be more than offset by the saving in the abolishment of royalties now paid by the several companies to the trust.

A reduction in price may also mean a change in the system of adjustments, and the creation by several companies of a scale of adjustments all their own. Many things are now likely likely to be the result of the abandonment of the cast iron agreement now existing between the manufacturers, and I predict that many secret orders will be issued from the several headquarters within a few days. It is more than likely that within the next day or so the local representatives will receive instructions to cut prices as out lined above. In fact, to tell the truth, there is a strong impression that such orders have been issued. Many of the local branch managers have within the past week or so made visits to their home office where conferences have been held.

DANGEROUS TWO-CENT ECONOMY is taking cheap plasters for sudden ills when Sanford's coats but little more.

DOWD COMES OUT SQUARELY FOR MORAN

Candidate for Congress in the Eleventh District Declares His Preference.

Thomas H. Dowd, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Eleventh District, declares squarely in favor of John B. Moran for the Democratic nomination for Governor. He believes that Mr. Moran is not only the strongest candidate in Boston, but that the sentiment for him is substantial all through the State.

"Just back a few days from several weeks in Europe, I have been receiving reports on the situation and it seems to me that it would be useless for any other candidate to stem the tide that has set in for Mr. Moran. Before going away I told him I would be for him, and I now publicly declare that I shall give his candidacy my heartiest support. I have known him intimately for many years and have always respected his ability, his honesty, his fearlessness, and his many other good qualities.

Wants to Serve the People.

"I believe he is actuated by a purpose to serve the people faithfully. I know that he cannot be controlled by corporations or ordered around by political adventurers.

"That he has hitherto made a political general is amply attested by the utter rout of Josiah Dalney and the State machine he represented.

"I shall make a strenuous campaign in the Eleventh District for the nomination for Congress, and I have now in the habit of allowing the other fellow to defeat me in politics. I invite inspection of my record in the Legislature and the city government of Boston. On all matters affecting the people's interests I believe I have always been sound and right. Not only have I voted for them, but I have also spoken and worked for them. My opponent, Andrew J. Peters, may have the backing of Mayor Fitzgerald, and Congressman Sullivan may be disposed to favor him, but I shall not allow them to dictate the politics of the Eleventh District. I was on the stump night after night for Joe Mayor during his campaign and my friends think it is rather ungrateful for him to take sides against me now."

To Demand Explanations.

Ex-Senator Peters has not declared his position relative to the candidacy of Mr. Moran for Governor, but it is believed likely that he will be asked to do so before long. It is also likely that ex-Senator Dowd will ask Mayor Fitzgerald to explain some things he is alleged to have said about the Dowd candidacy for Senator.

The contest on the Republican side for the nomination in the Eleventh district is being fiercely fought by Senator Daniel W. Lane and Senator Frank Bellerting. The former has the State machine with him and the latter has the Republican city organization. And organized labor is making a special drive against Senator Lane because of his attitude on labor bills in the Senate.

The battleship Georgia is being rushed to completion at the Bath Iron Works and it is expected will arrive at the Charlestown navy yard, where she will receive her finishing touches in about six weeks. When ready she will be placed in commission here.

BATTLE HOURLY EXPECTED WITH CUBAN REBELS

War Veterans Join Government Forces Against Insurgents.

HAVANA, Aug. 29.—Under command of General Francisco Peroza, three hundred veterans, infantry and calvary, have started for Batabano to cover the flank of General Rosa, commanding 700 provisional veterans, most of whom served on the staff of the famous Maximo Gomez, started last night for Pinar del Rio by special train. Gunboats took to Batabano 200 cases of ammunition. Mosquito gunboats are watching filibustering.

In the absence of news of fighting between government and insurgent forces, interest centres in the government's offer of clemency to rebels who return to their homes. The offer is criticised because it does not fix a time for the laying down of arms, thus giving the insurgents time to test their cause a while longer and still reserve the opportunity to quit.

Major Gomez is moving from Cuba toward Yaguramas, Santa Clara province, forming a strong force of insurgents, and a battle is expected shortly.

The tobacco men are considering means to bring about negotiations with Pino Guerra for a cessation of hostilities.

UNCLE SAM IGNORED BY KAISER IN THE CUBAN REVOLUTION

HAVANA, Aug. 29. The Secretary of State, Senor O'Farrill, was closeted yesterday with the corps an representatives of other nations in the crisis. Each of them laid the matter before the United States, recalling its responsibility under the Platt amendment to the Cuban constitution. Germany is dealing directly with the Cuban government.

During yesterday afternoon Jacob Sleeper, the American charge, and many others were unable to see Senor O'Farrill. It is known the conference was of the utmost importance and related to the safety of German subjects and property in the present revolution.

Senor O'Farrill, who was acting minister of the government until this week, has been most anxious to explain the existing situation and show that there is no reason to fear that the government cannot control the revolution. He has told diplomats they must not expect the trouble to end within two months.

ILLINOIS CONGRESSMAN TELLS HOW Hearst Preserved Home Where Lincoln Moulded Character That Saved a Nation

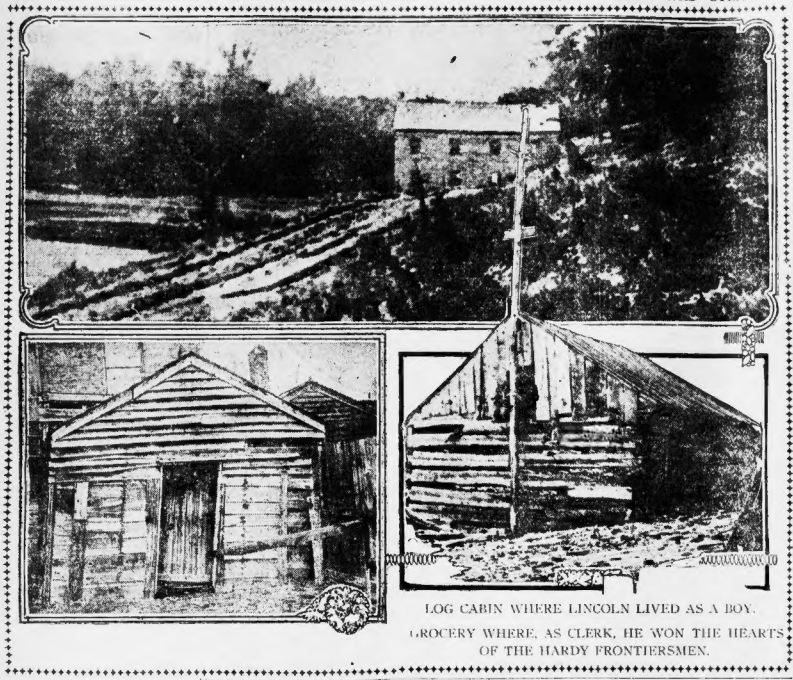
OLD MILL WHERE LINCOLN TOOK TOLL AND NEAR WHICH, ON THE DAM, HIS RAFT WAS STRANDED.



LOG CABIN WHERE LINCOLN LIVED AS A BOY.

GROCERY WHERE, AS CLERK, HE WON THE HEARTS OF THE HARDY FRONTIERSMEN.

By Henry T. Rainey,

Representative in Congress from the Twentieth Illinois District.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29—Immediately the trustees of the Old Salem Chautauqua in Illinois will begin the construction of houses for educational instruction on the property where Abraham Lincoln attained his manhood, and which estate is now preserved for Americans through the kindness of Mr. William Randolph Hearst. That gentleman cannot appreciate the extent of our people's gratitude. He has given to our country one of its most historic spots.

The new Salem grounds are to be reserved for the use of the young, that they there may learn the blessings of patriotism. It is to be free for students. Here they may come and rest where Lincoln absorbed the vast and thrilling forces that are laid in an ideal form of government.

To Build Schoolhouses.

Schoolhouses are to be erected on the property in time for next Summer's Chautauqua gathering. These buildings will be commodious and well equipped. From time to time the trustees will make additions. Already the Old Salem Chautauqua is the second largest in America. In five years the trustees expect Old Salem to take first place. This will become so largely on account of the patriotic associations connected with the ground.

During the early part of last Spring Mr. Hearst was invited by President Tice of the society to deliver an address on Old Salem. Because of his reverence for the character of Lincoln, it was not a difficult task to persuade him to go to that patriot's old home. Congress was then in session and we were together much of the time. When I had informed him of the efforts that had been made by the trustees to buy the Lincoln site, he asked if the property was on the market, or if, in any manner, the owners could be persuaded to sell it.

Site Sought by Brewers.

I told him that the property doubtless could be purchased, but to make sure I would write to some of my friends and find out. In the course of that conversation I remarked to him that a brewery was at the time negotiating for it. It was intended by the brewers there to open a Summer garden there and to run excursions from the Chautauqua grounds and from Petersburg, the county seat. Indignant. Turning to me he said: "If that old homestead can be bought I will buy it. Arrange to secure the deeds so soon as you can, will you?"

I began a correspondence that ultimately resulted in the purchase. But the gentlemen who really did the good work of securing the options were Judge N. H. Dunn, H. H. Levering and Dorsey J. Tice, directors of the Old Salem Chautauqua. The property belonged to the Bayles estate, the heirs of which were willing to sell when they heard that the land was to be attached to the Chautauqua.

But while the negotiations were going on none knew the identity of the real purchaser, except the few of us who were proceeding to carry out Mr. Hearst's requests. And not until public announcement was made ten days ago was the New York Congressman's name mentioned as the purchaser.

Act of a Patriot.

It is really the act of a patriot, that of making a national park out of the grounds.

The grounds are beautifully situated on the old site, where Mr. Lincoln clerked in the cross-roads store, there have grown up trees of wonderful foliage and shade. Nearby is the Sangamon River. Huge bluffs make this stream almost a canyon, where a bridge, to be called the Henry Bridge, is to connect the new Salem Park with the old Salem site. This bridge is to be of steel and will be completed in a few months. Thus, both parks will be thrown into one, access from one to the other made easy and safely by reason of the bridge.

The new Salem park is sacred earth. There that greatest of all Americans passed through his earliest struggles. The vicissitudes that surrounded him and the obstacles that he overcame while a simple countryman of the woods, assisted in moulding a character that afterwards saved a nation.

Conquered in Adversity.

Even there he was majestic in his individuality. By intellect the commonest men and women trusted him. He was more solid than brilliant, and his character, formed there largely, was strangely symmetrical. On that historic site God lifted from him the veil of obscurity.

It is worth while referring to that place where he first showed evidences of genius. His choosing new Salem as a home was merely that of an accident. Tradition tells us that he was employed on a raft loaded with merchandise and floating down stream for New Orleans. The modest cargo had come near Springfield. At Salem the flat boat went aground and was soon filled with water. Young Lincoln had his trials and suffered them.

On down to where the Sangamon joins the Illinois River, Lincoln took notice of all the good places, the dangerous bends and the snags. These observations later became assets of value to him. Because of his familiarity with the river he later secured a position as an assistant pilot on the first steamboat that navigated the stream as high above as Springfield.

First Saw Slavery.

With the raft spoken of, however, Lincoln proceeded to New Orleans. It is related that in the Crescent city he saw, for the first time, slaves sold in the open market. The sight aroused in him all the anger that was contained in his spirit. Armed with the blood and the fire of the free rounder, he resolved to oppose this trafficking in human beings. He talked about slavery all the way up the Mississippi, and when got to St. Louis he bought literature pertaining to the slave trade.

When New Salem knew him his former employer, a man by the name of Offutt, and on whose raft the tall and gawky youth had floated to New Orleans, urged him to establish a store at New Salem, and Lincoln was offered the job of clerking for him.

This he accepted, and thus he cast his lot among the hardy frontiersmen for whom, a few years later, he became their leader.

The once sprightly and lively village of New Salem is no more. Except for the old cabin in which Lincoln lived and to be preserved by Mr. Hearst—not a cunning hand left to mark the place where New Salem once stood. The copse of wood looks refreshing and inviting in Summer.

Welcome in Huge Oaks.

The huge oaks reach out shady limbs as if to welcome the traveler. No improvement of any sort has taken place there in twenty years. Plover and quail find nests among the weeds, and rabbits and owls disport themselves in riotous abandon because there are no huntsmen to frighten them away.

Skirting the base of the bluff is the river which, coming around a sudden bend, strikes the rocky hill, making the waters swirl in endless eddies. Here once was the old mill where Lincoln took toll. Across the river stands remnants of the old dam site on which Lincoln's raft was stranded.

They are now to be seen at Springfield. About the time Lincoln was seized with legislative aspiration, he fell in love with Anne Rutledge. Their courtship is now American history. It was the most beautiful and the most romantic and the most tragic of those days and in all history. His devotions to her were of the most sincere nature. He pleaded his case with all the earnestness of his soul.

Death Robbed Him of Bride.

Miss Rutledge, the most charming of Illinois maidens, was not without other suitors and the race for her hand was fast and furious. At last they announced their engagement. Abe and Anne, and all over the surrounding country appended the work of Cupid. But alas, before the wedding day arrived the girl was seized with a fatal fever. Day by day she sank until finally all hope was banished.

Miss Rutledge soon knew she was doomed and although visitors were forbidden to see her she demanded that Lincoln be sent for. When he arrived at the bedside the door was locked and they were left alone.

What vows were made in that room of death no one will ever know; but we all know that when she was cold and pulseless Lincoln for a long time afterward was disarranged.

It was months before he recovered from the awful shock, and until the day of his assassination the mention of her name saddened him immeasurably.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

(INCORPORATED BY THE STATE OF NEW YORK)

JOHN R. HEGEMAN, President

Dividend Announcement

INDUSTRIAL

The Company has just declared a cash mortuary dividend on Policies over 5 years in force which have matured and shall mature in 1906, to all death claims on Policies over 5 years in force it adds 5 per cent.; to all death claims on Policies over 6 years in force, 6 per cent., and an additional 1 per cent. for each year of duration. Thus the dividend on claims under Policies over 10 years in force is 10 per cent.; over 15 years, 15 per cent.; over 20 years, 20 per cent.; over 25 years, 25 per cent.; 1879 (the earliest issue), 27 per cent. The cost of this dividend payable during the current year is approximately

ONE MILLION TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS

In addition to this the immediate benefits (payable during the six months after date of issue) on adult Industrial Policies, excepting Term and Endowment, issued during 1906 have been doubled. Certain increases have also been made in the benefits on infantile Endowment Policies during the first year. The cost of these, which will operate as a dividend on all claims maturing during this year, on the issue of this year, is approximately

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS

These dividends are over and above the dividend declared on Industrial Policies January 1 last, which was a cumulative cash dividend amounting to about 20 per cent. of the premium for a year, declared on all Policies (except Increasing Life and Endowment Policies, which by their terms carry benefits increasing yearly after the third year) issued in 1881, 1886, 1891, 1896 and 1901. The amount appropriated for this dividend was about

SIX HUNDRED AND EIGHTY-TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS

Thus the Company THIS YEAR has declared and IS PAYING dividends on Industrial Policies amounting to

Over Two Millions of Dollars

Every one of these Policies is non-participating, promising a definite sum only at maturity, without dividends. The payment of the dividend is PURELY VOLUNTARY. Dividends have been actually paid without promise for many years by the Metropolitan. The total amount now approximates in 12 years. Included among these Policies are hundreds of thousands of Policies issued by other companies and assumed by the Metropolitan.

Ten Millions of Dollars

INTERMEDIATE

Intermediate Policies for $500 each have been issued by the Metropolitan for 10 years past. They are Policies designed for such of the industrial classes as can afford to pay annual, semi-annual or quarterly premiums instead of weekly. As the plan was new there was no actuarial experience to guide the Company as to mortality cost. The Company promised to pay, if earned, dividends after five years and annually thereafter This year the Company set aside over to be paid in dividends on Intermediate Policies during 1906. Payment of these dividends has brought the cost of the Policies very nearly down to the non-participating rates of this and other Ordinary companies.

Six Hundred and Twenty Thousand Dollars

ORDINARY

The Ordinary Policies issued by the Company for the last 15 years have been practically all written on non-participating rates—plain business contracts for plain business men, which tell their whole story upon their face, leave nothing to the imagination, borrow nothing from hope, require definite conditions and make definite promises in dollars and cents. The rates, therefore, are low. The Company has in force, however, a considerable, though, compared with its total business, a very small percentage of participating business. Some of the Policies were issued on annual dividend and some on deferred dividend plans—many of the latter having been issued by other companies and assumed by the Metropolitan. Upon these Policies the Company has this year declared and is paying a dividend equal to the excess premium charged by mutual rates over the non-participating rates charged on its current business. The amount of this dividend is nearly TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS, which is a voluntary extra dividend.

Thus the amount of dividends the METROPOLITAN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY is paying this year is nearly

Three Millions of Dollars

THREE QUARTERS OF WHICH IS A VOLUNTARY GIFT BY THE COMPANY TO ITS PATRONS.

MORAL—INSURE IN THE METROPOLITAN.

MORAN REPLIES TO JOSIAH QUINCY'S LETTER

"Con Josiah's" Lament

OLD DIOG with his lantern searched for an honest man.
But Josiah, with a gold brick, can't find an "also ran."
Josiah is a slick 'un, once was Mayor of the city.
But not a pol in all the State will show him any pity.
Whitney quit, Douglas ducked and Thayer climbed a tree—
"The only stayer in the bunch," says Jo, "is shell-game me.
I'll have to get a candidate with the gubernatorial bee,
Or they'll put me in the D. O. Club, tagged as twenty-three.
I'll never wear a button that bears the Moran phiz
For 'tis my game to get away with what is truly his.
I'd like to be an angel and with Old Grover stand
A-playing for twelve thousand in the Graft Insurance Band,
But while in Massachusetts, tooting Gaston's little horn,
I'm jes' a lone hand 'shoe-string'—tattered, frayed and torn."

District Attorney John B. Moran has briefly and tersely declared in a letter to Josiah Quincy that he will not leave it to William Jennings Bryan to decide whether or not he shall be the party standard bearer in Massachusetts this Fall. In the letter he sent a Moran campaign button and addressed Quincy to wear it.

When Whitney was in the field and was taunted by Quincy as the best representative leader of the Massachusetts Democracy, Mr. Moran suggested Bryan as arbitrator between them. Mr. Whitney would not agree.

District Attorney Moran, in his reply to Quincy, points out the latter's inconsistency. When there was a contest and an arbitrator might have had something to decide, the small Quincy faction would not heed to any such suggestion. Now that Whitney has quit and the Quincy game of bluff has failed, Mr. Moran declines to let any one decide whether he shall relinquish a well-won victory.

Moran's letter is as follows:

"Hon. Josiah Quincy:

"Dear Sir—Your favor received. As no candidate opposes my nomination, suggestion of arbitration is absurd.

"The only contest now possible is that about to take place between Guild and Moran.

"I send you a Moran campaign button, the wearing of which will be indisputable proof of your recognition of the right of the Democratic masses to govern themselves in defiance of dictation by self-constituted bosses. Truly yours,

"JOHN B. MORAN."

VERMONT MOB TRIES TO LYNCH GIRL ATTACKER

Sheriff Holds Off 300 Angry Citizens While Prisoner Faints in Cell.

WAS JAILED JUST IN TIME

GRAND ISLE, Vt., Aug. 29.—Armed with every conceivable kind of a weapon, a mob of 300 farmers and villagers surrounded the Grand Isle county jail yesterday and demanded that Edson Bleiem, charged with attacking 12-year-old Josephine Patnaude, be turned over to them in order that he might be lynched. Through the courage of Sheriff Arthur L. Hurlburt and a corps of deputies the mob was dispersed as Bleiem lay in a faint fit in his cell.

The girl reported the matter to her parents and then fell to the floor unconscious. The alarm was quickly spread and soon a mob was hunting for Bleiem. The officers, however, secured him and buried him before Justice Charles H. Russell, who held him for the county court in the sum of $5,000. Bleiem was then taken to jail. By this time the neighbors had been notified of the arrest and surged to the jail in a mob, arriving there just as the doors were being closed.

Going through the West Roxbury district they were followed by a large crowd. After climbing the hill on Washington street to Beech street they entertained a crowd of 150 persons by relating their experiences.

They hoped to reach Providence some time to-day or early to-morrow morning. "We have got lots of time to reach Chicago before the designated time in order to win the $5,000 wager," said Hignam.

BURGLARS IN LYNN HOUSE GET $300 LOOT

Manufacturer's Residence Entered and Ransacked During His Absence.

OPENED REAR WINDOW

LYNN, Aug. 29.—The discovery was made to-day that sometime during last night the fashionable residence of Frederick W. Herrick, one of Lynn's most prominent shoe manufacturers, at No. 43 Autumn street, was visited by burglars who robbed the house of jewelry and silver worth $300.

The Herrick family is summering at Salisbury Beach and the only person sleeping in the house last night was Albert Herrick, the seventeen-year-old son of the owner. Upon leaving the house early to-day Albert found an open window in the rear of the house and upon investigating found that the house had been ransacked, and a diamond ring and brooch, two pairs of valuable opera glasses and a quantity of silverware was missing.

The police were notified and are looking for the burglars.

Rich Food Value of Pabst Beer

Good Reason Why the Finest Bottled Beer Should Be in Every Home.

There is no beverage more healthful and none more satisfying and refreshing than good beer. That is why we say that Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer, the choicest of all bottled beers, should be in every household where things to eat and drink are valued according to their purity, cleanness and actual food strength. Before or with your meals it is appetizing and invigorating and at all times it is a cool, refreshing drink.

Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is the superior of all beers in cleanness and purity and also in food value. This is because of the Pabst exclusive eight-day method of making malt. Malt is the soul and body of beer, and the richer the malt the more wholesome the beer. Malt is made from barley by a process of growth and perfect malt. Pabst eight-day malt, contains all the food elements of barley in prolixested form.

Most brewers grow their malt in four days, but four day malt is an unnatural development and necessarily inferior because in the rushed growth of the grain its vital food value is thrown off and lost. By scientific experiments and sixty years of practical brewing Pabst has proved that eight days are required to make perfect malt. This gives the barley slow growth and all the food value of the grain is retained in Pabst eight-day malt. That is why Pabst Beer is so nourishing and strengthening.

How much do you suppose the men who are running bucket shops subtract from their unconscious customers every year? Men who ought to know say $200,000,000. That's ghastly, if true. How much do you suppose we have damaged them since we began our attacks in Everybody's Magazine three months ago? A lot of the bucket-shoppers themselves admit that they have not been able to do any business at all for the last thirty days. We would like to put every one of them out of business forever.

Do you know of any one who has been victimized by these conscienceless crooks? Mr. Teague tells him in the September Everybody's how to go about it to get his money back. He also shows the way in which these fellows can be put out of business. If we all can put them out of business and get back to the owners a lot of the money taken from them, what a splendid thing that will be!

For the past three months Everybody's Magazine has been exposing the tricks of the bucket-shoppers—how the game is worked; how they gloss over their illegal transactions with a covering of business pretense, how legitimate business concerns make money by supporting bucket-shop crimes, and how bucket-shoppers even use the United States Mail in carrying out their schemes.

The main purpose we have in advertising in the daily newspapers is to increase the circulation of Everybody's Magazine. But in this instance we are not advertising wholly for circulation. We know that a great many people cannot be prevailed upon to read the articles about the bucket-shops in our magazine. We are paying for this big space to get before the people who will not read the magazine the names of a lot of bucket-shop sharks and where they are doing business in the hope that the communities in which these blood-suckers are working will know them for what they are, will shun them like a pestilence, if they do not strangle them.

HELD IN BONDS OF $10,000 FOR SHOOTING WIFE

Chelsea Man in Court Facing Charge of Murderous Assault.

WOMAN IS NEAR DEATH

Pleading not guilty to the charge of murderous assault, Robert H. Long of No. 20 B-llingham street, Chelsea, husband of Jennie Long, his children's wife who now lies at the point of death in the Frost Hospital, with four bullet wounds in her body, faced Judge Rossen this morning in the Chelsea District Court. The judge held Long in $10,000 bonds for a hearing pending his wife's condition.

Attorney P. B. Keenan appeared for Long and Attorney Frank Keegan had the case for the government. The court room was crowded as both Long and his young wife were well known in Chelsea. In default of bail Long was locked up.

The shooting took place in view of hundreds of people passing along Bellingham street. Long had followed his wife from the home, which they have been in for innocence at falling into a trap he had laid for her. When they were but a short distance away she noticed that a man was following her.

Fired Seven Shots at Her.

Almost at the same time Long jumped upon her with a revolver in his hand and fired seven shots at her. Four of these took effect, and the woman dropped to the street. An excited crowd of people fled in every direction.

Long then turned the revolver upon himself and pulled the trigger in an attempt to shoot himself, but the hammer only snapped upon empty shells. Patrolman Sandford rushed to the spot and grabbed Long. Other officers came to the scene and the girl was hurried to the hospital.

Drs. Powers and Chipman worked on her for hours in an effort to save her life. There is little chance that she will live. One of the bullets is in the right shoulder, one in the right forearm, the third in the abdomen and the fourth in the left hip.

Long and his wife, who, previous to her marriage a few years ago, was Jennie Hazel Dill of Chelsea, had not been getting along well of late. Long had been out of employment much of the time, and his wife, in order to assist in the support of the family, had obtained a position as a cashier in the souvenir postal card booth at Wonderland.

Shortly before 6 o'clock last night a telephone message was received at the amusement park to the effect that Long had shot his eighteen-months-old boy and then himself. The mother, nearly prostrated at the news, hurried toward home. When her was an attendant from the park. They reached Bellingham street, but were surprised to hear that the story was untrue.

Had Words with Husband.

Mrs. Long was angered, and after a few words with her husband, left the house again. She and the woman who had accompanied her from the park boarded the Russell square, nearly two blocks from the Bellingham street place, and left the shooting took place.

The couple were married three years ago, and after a year and a half of near-bliss a son, Raymond Long, was born. Since the first of the Summer the child has been cared for by Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Long, the parents of the husband.

Late yesterday afternoon the elder Mr. Long and his wife went out, and the conception is that during their absence Robert purchased a revolver and cartridges. He then went to the telephone station and called up Wonderland park, leaving the message for his wife.

"FATHER'S FURIOUS, BUT WE'LL WED," SAYS BOSTON SHOW GIRL'S LORD

THREE STAGE POSES OF CAMILLE CLIFFORD.

American show girl who is engaged to Hon. Lyndhurst Bruce, heir of Lord Aberdare.

Hon. Mr. Bruce, Heir of Lord Aberdare, Talks Jauntily of His Engagement to Camille Clifford.

Camille Clifford, who six years ago counted herself lucky to get a job selling Powers and cigarettes in the Columbia Theatre, is really going to marry the Hon. Henry Lyndhurst Bruce, son and heir of the multi-millionaire, Lord Aberdare, of England and Wales, according to London cables to the BOSTON AMERICAN.

The girl who came to this city an emigrant from Sweden in 1899, with her natural beauty as her only asset, is to become the bride of a typical English swell and the prospective Lady Aberdare.

When Miss Clifford was here last July she denied the growing report that she was betrothed. But the Hon. Henry himself, between cigarette puffs, admits to London that they are engaged. That the Hon. Henry is a bowling swell of the most ultra-British type is evident from his graceful acknowledgment of the situation.

"My friends were frantic when they learned we were engaged," he said, "and my father was simply furious as soon as I told him. He said all sorts of things to me and we've scarcely spoken since."

Thinks It Will Be O. K.

"Still I think it will be O. K. Father said if I insisted on marrying Miss Clifford and everything goes well, he'll receive me, but if you ask him about the engagement you'll get a furious denial.

"It won't a bit stir pians, however. My friends have been very rude to me about my engagement, and I've said rude things to them. Hardly any one comes near me, but whenever they say I'm going to marry Miss Clifford.

"She is frightfully annoyed about my friends' opposition to our engagement, but, understand this, she does not care a rap whether she's married or not. As far as I'm concerned, my mind is made up, and I do not think she'll disagree with me.

"When first bluntly asked if he was engaged to Miss Clifford, Bruce said:

"Well, er, doncherknow the fact is I'm in an awkward predicament. We've had a little scrimmage, doncherknow. No, it isn't serious and it won't interfere with our engagement.

"Must Live, Doncherknow."

"The fact is I'm going into business, doncherknow. We must live, doncherknow, somehow or other, so I'm ready to buy an automobile business. Miss Clifford thinks I ought to have consulted her about the business and she is coming from Norway sooner than she expected to talk things over.

"No matter what she says I'll buy the business. I've been running it for three days, so I ought to know it.

"The engagement came about quite accidentally. Some months ago I took a friend to drive in my motor. He suggested that we call at Miss Clifford's flat. We called and had tea.

"At first I wasn't a bit attracted. I met many girls of the stage would snap up a fellow of my position, she is most independent. She's had all sorts of offers, but she refused to listen to them, which was quite nice, doncherknow. However, three months age she accepted me.

"When Miss Clifford was in this city last she told of the attentions showered upon her by Lord Bruce, but said that it was not her intention to marry him, for the reason that he is taking a husband she would be compelled to abandon her stage career which opened with such great promise for future success.

Miss Clifford was a guest of her aunt, Mrs. Margaret Schiller at No. 11 Pontiac street, Roxbury. Her cousin, Miss Jennie Schiller, said to-day:

"Camille was with us here last Winter, and at that time she was in poor health, and was then planning to go to Norway, hoping that the change would be of benefit to her. Camille told us that Sir Henry Bruce had asked her to become his wife, but she did not then think that she would marry him, as she was making rapid advancement in her music and did not wish to give up her promising career. When she first began to study her voice was also, but under cultivation and constant practice it developed into a soprano of great range and power.

WOMAN FAINTS IN COURT ROOM

While testifying in behalf of her husband in the Malden District Court to-day, telling the story of how Patrick Burlingame set upon and pummelled him, Mrs. William H. Sullivan swooned and fell to the floor. The court room was thrown into confusion, Judge Sweetser and the court officials restored order. Officials took the woman to an anteroom, and after half an hour's work brought her to consciousness. She was then taken in charge by a doctor and carried to her home.

The trial resumed without her testimony. Burlingame was found guilty of assaulting Sullivan and fined $10.

SAY WIFE USED BRICK ON HIM

John Cummings of No. 99 Mercer street, South Boston, is at the City Hospital in a dangerous condition as a result, it is alleged, of being struck over the head with a brick by his wife, who was hit on the head with a piece of the same brick while on a roof two weeks ago, and has not been quite herself since.

According to the police Mrs. Cummings ran into the street, crying that her husband had pulled her hair and punched her, then picked up a brick and returned and attacked him with it.

MISSING CLERK $3,500 SHORT

BERLINGFIELD, Aug. 29.—A shortage of $3,500 in the accounts of the missing city clerk, John D. White, of this city, was announced by Mayor Taylor last night by City Auditor Kelly of Boston.

The mayor himself positively that Mr. White has disappeared, called on the mayor Monday morning, according with a ticket to Albany, in his hand. No steps for pursuit have as yet been taken.

FORGERY TAUGHT IN REFORMATORY?

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—"Photo-engraving should not be taught in the Elmira Reformatory," Delegate Byrne of the Photo Engravers' Union, declared to the Central Federated Union to-day. He had reported that three graduates of the reformatory recently had been held on forgery charges. "It is a grave menace to commerce to give criminals a knowledge of photo-engraving."

NELSON'S MANAGER WINS OUT ON A BLUFF

JOHN L. SULLIVAN SAYS IF HE HAD A MILLION DOLLARS HE WOULD BET IT ALL ON GANS TO BEAT NELSON IN SIX ROUNDS.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 29.—John L. Sullivan says if he had some of John D. Rockefeller's wealth he would bet a million that Joe Gans will wallop Battling Nelson into insensibility in six rounds. Sullivan says he never liked a negro, but says he is compelled to select Gans because he thinks the colored fighter the better man.

"Gans ought to come home on the bit," says the once mighty John L. "I never liked a negro as a fighting man, and to be perfectly frank, I'd rather see Nelson win, but I don't think he can. Gans is the greatest lightweight the ring ever saw. He could lick them all in their best day. Gans is easily the fastest and cleverest man of his weight in the world. He can hit like a mule kicking, with either hand.

"He is there with the coolness and ring generalship, and I think he has it on Bat this time. Gans's record is shady, like himself. Against my sentiments, I pick Gans in six rounds by a knockout, but I hope the other fellow wins."

GANS MUST WEIGH IN CLOTHED

Nelson's Manager Gains Point After Threatening to Throw Up the Bout.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

GOLDFIELD, Nev., Aug. 29.—The directors of the Goldfield Athletic Club had a very stormy meeting, the terms imposed upon Gans in the matter of weighing in being the cause of the turmoil.

Billy Nolan was there by invitation, and Gans was brought from his training quarters in an automobile. Nolan said he would insist that Gans weigh in with his ring costume on, according to championship rules.

The club members reminded Nolan that when the articles of agreement were being drawn up it was decided that screens should be placed in the ring behind which the fighters might weigh, and it was clearly understood then that the men were to weigh in in a nude state if they desired.

Nolan said he had not understood in that way, but the club directors to a man said that such was their understanding in the matter. Nolan remained obdurate, and at one stage of the conference Gans said: "If I was a white man I'd lick you."

Nolan replied: "Don't ever think of trying anything like that."

The meeting lasted nearly four hours, but no impression was made upon Nolan, who said:

"We will forfeit $5,000 and withdraw from the fight before we will give in."

Finally Gans agreed to adopt a very light ring costume, to wit: A pair of fighting shoes and an abbreviated breechcloot. Nolan said:

"That is satisfactory to me," though just what difference the style of Gans's costume made to Nolan, so long as Gans fought in it, is not very clear. The gist of the whole business is that Nolan carried his point.

Lectured on Rules.

Gans and Nelson were lectured on certain clauses in the articles. Clause 4 says "Orders by referee to break must be by word of mouth." Clause 5 reads: "After a fighter has knocked down his opponent he must retire to his corner."

Siler held that there were times when a verbal order to break was insufficient. He said that one man might be dazed and clinging to the other desperately, in such cases it was for the referee to part the men. He held further that there is no necessity for a man to walk all the way to his corner after knocking down his opponent. To step back a couple of paces will be sufficient.

Both Nelson and Gans told Siler that they would abide by his ruling in the matters referred to, but it is possible that a more thorough understanding would be had before the fight day comes round. When the meeting closed President Tex Richard said:

"Gans is a fine fellow and a game sport. He has given in on every point that has come up."

The other directors were equally loud in their praise of the colored fighter.

Battler's Weight a Secret.

Nothing official was given out in respect to the Battler's weight, the disposition being to keep the matter a snug secret. It is more than probable that Gans will weigh about 133 pounds at present, and that is the intention to keep him at that for the few days. He will have no difficulty in dropping to 133 when required.

In the past Nelson has not demurred when the critics described Gans as an aggressive fighter with plenty of endurance and no great degree of cleverness. Now it is different. He feels that he has improved greatly in the boxing department of the game, and he is desirous of receiving some credit for it.

"As a rule I have been written up as a human fighting and an abnormal grute and all that sort of thing. That may do for the public, but I've become talented since I found out I was a boxer. I've observed and learned the tricks of the boxing game during the past years.

"I am no fool, you know, and when I began to fight I soon realized that I knew very little about the science of fooling. Almost anybody could hit me, but I did not mind, for I felt that just as soon as I could get a man the fight would come my way. So, in time went on I made up my mind that there was little sense in getting my head pounded off if I could avoid it, and I decided to take a course in boxing as it were whenever I could find the time.

"The chance occurred when I went on the road after beating Britt at Colma. I asked Nolan to engage the cleverest man he could find in the different towns we showed in, and I've made a study of the fine points of boxing. I'm sure any one will acknowledge that my footwork is better than ever was, and I have stayed up with my boxing. When I trained with Lundie at Colma for the Britt fight everybody talked of the way Bob put it all over me, but it's very different now and Bob himself has improved a whole lot since then. I can do a lot more execution with my left now, and I have stayed up at night teaching my left how to shoot out straight and now I've got an educated left that I'm proud of.

"Now, although I claim to have improved as a boxer," continued Nelson, "it must not be thought that I'm going to make a mere spar of cleverness of it with Gans. I will go after him just as I went after the other fellows."

SCENES AT GOLDFIELD WHERE NELSON AND GANS FIGHT ON LABOR DAY

This photo gives a view of the arena and also part of the new famous town of Goldfield. It also shows the workmen striving to erect the stands in time to accommodate the crowd that is expected on Labor Day.

The other pictures show how important a figure automobiles cut in modern life. Even pugilists have them at their training camps. In one picture Nelson is seen pumping up a tire and in the other Gans was snapped while taking a spin with his manager.

To-day will be the last chance to see the Indians and the Pilgrims play at Huntington avenue grounds. The visitors have already won two games from the home nine, and they are going hard after the third and last battle of the series.

The Bostons have slumped woefully in their series with the Naps. Their deciding loss, been far inferior to that put up by them against the other strong Western clubs. Their batting has been very fair. Chick Stahl, the hard working centre-fielder, is now at the head of the locals, and under his direction the home team may do better work. Acting Manager Stahl says that his men are going hard after the scalps of the Indians to-day, and it would not be surprising if they downed the visitors.

Manager Lajoie of the Clevelands, still has his eye on the pennant. He figures that if the Athletics are able to trim the White Sox in their double-header scheduled to-day, and his men are able to trim the same team in the five games starting Friday, that his men have a great chance to capture the American League flag honors.

Cy Young, who it was thought would be used yesterday, instead of Bill Dinneen, who was knocked out of the box on Monday in the first inning, will probably do the twirling for the home nine to-day. Cy in his last two games has displayed good form, and it is likely that he will give the Forest City aggregation a long run for their money.

Moss, who has pitched with marked success for the Indians this season, is booked to appear on the mound. He is a terrible left-hander, and has always done effective work again the Bostons.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 29.—After nursing from a hardly successful western trip, the Dodgers will open here this afternoon with the Bostons. Both won on their trip east all day yesterday, after finishing on western schedules, the home team coming from St. Louis and Boston hastening for Chicago.

Either Strickett or Pastorius will do the work for Brooklyn to-day. Pfeffer is scheduled for the visitors. Both teams are so far down in the league standing that a fair game is expected.

When seen this morning at his hotel, Manager Tenney said that he was still undecided in getting any new players, not because the services of such men are available, but because the pris demanded was generally too much for the owners of his team to pay.

NUTBOY WILL BE IN THE 2:09 CLASS TO-DAY

After the day's postponement the Grand Circuit meeting at Readville will be resumed this afternoon, the program having been carried along one day, making the meeting now close on Friday. The events to-day are the 2:14 pace, 2:09 trot and 2:09 pace.

Nutboy, the winner of the Massachusetts Stake, will be a starter in the 2:09 trot, as Owner Crabtree was advised that it would be the best thing for the horse in order to fit him for the Charter Oak race at Hartford next week.

After winning the big event last week Nutboy was thought to have an attack of blackwater, and he was scratched from future events.

Last night the gelding showed such good signs of being close to top form that it was decided to give him a race in his class. On account of his recent indisposition he may not be the first selection by the talent, but should be in the money.

Yesta Boy should carry off the most

HARVARD ROWS FAST COURSE

PUTNEY, Aug. 29.—Harvard's fast time row yesterday has caused much favorable comment among the oarsmen today. They rowed over course twenty-one seconds slower than the time made by Cambridge in the race last April, in which a record was established. This is considered good proof that the Americans are capable of putting up a great race with the Englishmen.

The weather was fine and the surface smooth. The tide was about at the ebb as the day of the race. The stroke was started at thirty-four and lowered to twenty-nine before half the distance was covered.

Morgan will be seated at No. 4 hereafter, Glass to be left out altogether.

NO WORD YET FROM COLLINS

Suspended Manager Said to Be at Nantasket Enjoying Things.

Many fans were not surprised when they learned that Jimmy Collins had been suspended by the Boston American League Club for insubordination.

Collins apparently lost interest in the team and from his actions on the field didn't care whether school kept or not. Many diamond experts say the club's salvation will be to get some live bench manager who Collins is at Nantasket Beach, where he may [illegible] is enjoying himself.

Treasurer McIlvein said this morning that no word had been received from Collins.

In the absence of Collins, Chick Stahl, the popular centre fielder, will have charge of the team.

It will be remembered that toward the close of the Boston League's home engagement in July Collins left the city without leave. He was down at Nantasket Beach having a high old time, and it was thought then that he would probably be deposed from his berth as manager.

Ban Johnson hurried to the city, and after two or three days everything was straightened out and Collins restored to his former high standing with the club.

Collins has been manager of the Boston Americans ever since the American League started, and he has brought here two pennants, a world's championship, second place twice and fourth place in that period.

JENNINGS NO TIGER.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 29.—"You can say positively that the Detroit Club has not hired Hugh Jennings of Baltimore to manage the Detroit team next year," said Secretary J. J. Navin yesterday. "The managerial question for next year has not been tackled, and no move has been made to get a successor for Manager Armour. There may be a berth for Hugh Jennings in the American League, but not here as yet."

DOROTHY DIX TELLS HOW TO WIN THE GIRL YOU LOVE

ARTIST JOHNSON'S IDEA OF SOME OF THE DIFFICULTIES THE SUITOR MUST OVERCOME

By Dorothy Dix

YOUNG man, you have just begun the study of that most curious of all known animals, and you are facing the need of a few tips about how to capture and tame it.

You don't aspire to be a carpet knight, or what old-fashioned people called a ladies' man," but you would like to know how to make yourself popular with the fair sex and to be one of the favored ones for whom women always make room whenever he approaches.

You observe men who are what you call lightweights—who are neither wise nor witty, nor handsome, nor good, nor successful in business, but who are always smiled upon by women, while other men, who are models of all the manly virtues, precipitate a headache upon a girl by merely sending up their cards at the front door.

Wherefore it seems to you that to please a woman is merely a matter of blind luck.

Not at all. Of course, tastes differ. The same qualities do not appeal with equal force to all women, thank goodness! or else we should all be after the same man; but there are certain broad principles of popularity on which all women stand, and the man who will take the trouble to master these need never fear he will not be able to make a winning with the girls.

A Neat Appearance

FIRST, then, see, be neat. A woman looks at a man's hands before she does at his morals, and, sad to say, she is more shocked at unmanicured nails than she is at unmanicured principles.

This is why the white-haired, no-account loafer generally gets the girl instead of the worthy young man who has worked his fingers to the quick trying to get ready to ask her to marry him.

Fortunately there is no reason why an exemplary character cannot be combined with a dailly tubbing; so never forget that cleanliness is next to love and above godliness in a woman's eyes. There are precious few things a woman won't overlook in a well-groomed man. Long hair and a two-days' beard will kill any incipient ruse of budding affection in a woman's breast.

Dress as well as possible. Not necessarily expensive, but wear clothes that are up to date and in the mode and that have been selected with some reference to the wearer, and a nice sense of suitability to the occasion.

Even more than in her own appearance does a woman gloat over being seen about with smart-looking man.

So look well to your wardrobe, and withhold not the quarter from the tailor who evens trousers with razor edges. More women have succumbed to the cut of a coat than ever did to the most burning love poetry.

Don't Waste Money

LEARN how to take care of a woman when you take her out. Practise on your sisters until you can steer one through the crowd without getting her unnecessarily bumped.

Spend hours—days—years, if it takes that long—walking round and round your female relatives until you find out how to come within hailing distance of a woman without stepping on her dress or trampling over her feet.

Learn how to order a little dinner or supper. If you don't know how, subsidize a head waiter into teaching you at the next restaurant you go to.

If you are only going to treat a girl to ice cream soda find out what is the best flavor and how to order it.

Learn how to spend money on women so as to get the best return.

Don't waste it. Don't be a spendthrift, and don't spend a penny more than you can afford, but don't be niggardly.

If you can't afford some of the best seats in the theatre, cultivate a taste for music and literature and take her to concerts and lectures. If you can't afford long-stemmed roses send some field flowers, because they reminded you of the country where you met, or a bunch of violets, because they are as fair as she.

Don't Argue

MEN are awfully silly in the way they throw away dollars on women when nickels would get better results if they would link the gift or the treat with some sentiment.

Women adore men who remember anniversaries and occasions and their pet fads, and any little thing, however inexpensive, goes then, but they loathe the man who takes them out seconds class, so to speak, on the cheap plan. Do it well, or not at all, is a good motto.

Learn to control your temper and your more irritative tendencies in women's presence.

Nothing gets on a woman's nerves so quickly as an argumentative man, and it is so little to her liking as the priggish individual who makes his purple a rostrum from which he expounds his theories on religion and politics and socialism, and every other red-hot subject under the sun.

Of course he disagrees with everybody, and from him is about as soothing as a mustard plaster.

Also, women hate that kind of men who always have a row with the ushers in the theatre over seats and with the street-car conductors over the fare.

A woman's idea of a real man is the man who always gets all that is coming to him without raising his voice or losing his smile.

Judges Hard at Work Selecting Winner in Doll House Contest

Lucky Girl to Be Named on Next Saturday

THE Doll House Editor knows just how eagerly thousands of little girls are awaiting the announcement of the winner in the doll house contest.

There is not long to wait now. The winner will be named Saturday.

The judges are having a hard time selecting the best letter, for so many splendid essays on housekeeping were received that all points must be taken into consideration. The girl who wins "Happy Home" may well be proud.

Here are some more letters from girls who tried to win.

COOL AND DARK

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

In the morning, when all is quiet, I would get up and start the fire and get the breakfast. Then I would call up Mr. Happy and give him his breakfast and send him to work. Then I should call up the children, wash and dress them and give them their breakfast and send them out to play. Then I would go upstairs and open the bedroom windows and put the bed clothes airing. Then I would go up about an hour later and make the beds. Then I should close the blinds and leave the rooms cool and dark.

That Tired Feeling and Some Sensible Ways of Curing It

By Dr. Ida Badanes

I RECEIVED a letter from a young girl who asks me to explain to her why she feels tired most of the time, why she is so pale and why her face is covered with pimples. She also asks for a remedy.

My dear child, there is no drug that I can prescribe which would cure any of all these symptoms, for these are nothing but symptoms of one ailment, the cause of which has to be found and removed.

Your complaints denote a weakened system, which may be due to mental or physical overwork, lack of outdoor exercise, lack of fresh air and the lack of proper food.

It is a common condition among school girls and shop girls. Both are confined indoors, both have no exercise and both are very fond of poor candy, which they consume in greater quantities than plain, wholesome food.

They make no effort to walk in the fresh air, but spend most of their spare time indoors, because of their feeling of malaise.

Follow Simple Rules

I DON'T know what class you belong to, my dear, whether to the one with the overworked brain or the one with the tired muscle, or to a class of your own of a simple candy eater and no muscle class, but whoever you are. It is very important that you make a change in this mode of living or you will ripen into sickly womanhood.

You must exert all your strength to follow simple rules of hygiene, and thus begin to improve slowly, but surely.

The great and most important remedy is fresh air and outdoor exercise—a long, brisk walk every day is a fine exercise.

The windows in the room where you sleep should always be open, the bed placed in a way so as to avoid draughts.

Eat Plain Food

IN the morning as soon as out of the warm bed a cold rubbing with a rough towel, dress quickly and then a quick walk for half an hour before breakfast. It is essential to walk fast, so as to warm up after the cold sponge, else the cold rub is to benefit.

Eat plain, wholesome food; avoid hot biscuit, hot bread, rich pastry; give up sweets for a time; chew the food slowly.

Join a gymnasium, if possible. Make it a rule to take a two-hour walk every day without fail. Go to bed early and sleep at least eight hours.

By leading such a life you will begin to improve at once, and in a short time you will notice that you can work or study twice as hard and accomplish a great deal more in less time than was your wont.

When the body is poorly nourished the brain is ill health.

The pimples on the face show poor digestion and poor assimilation. Nothing is more conducive to a nice complexion than a healthy system—good blood, and good circulation of the blood.

Red Nose and Red Veins

The Cause and Cure of These Humiliating Facial Troubles.

THESE afflictions are not always an indication of drink. Digestive troubles will cause a red nose more quickly than alcohol. We examine every case thoroughly and administer treatment to remove the cause. The redness then quickly disappears. In the most severe cases, when the nose and face are filled with small red veins our scientific treatments are used with unfailing success. This work is all done under the personal direction of specialists who have made this trouble a particular study.

Write to-day for question blank and full information; or, better still, call and talk with one of our specialists. Free consultation.

"SHADOWS OF NEW YORK"

Copyright, 1909, by American Journal-Examiner

WOULD they find out the c—d man's name? The real name? The chances seemed against it. The man had no friends in New York, except possibly a few acquaintances in Harlem and his late landlady there.

The girl whom Grieve had repulsed last night had doubtless been one of his Harlem and his late landlady there.

The girl whom Grieve had repulsed last night had doubtless been one of his Harlem acquaintances. But from Grieve's own words yesterday Haggard had gathered that he was anxious to shut a door on that part of his life; almost certainly he would not have mentioned the new name he proposed to adopt.

His landlady, if she read in the paper the account of the death of Mr. De Graves would not be likely to suspect that it was her late lodger.

The dead man's very snobbishness and vanity had proved a safeguard to his murderer. Why should he ever be identified?

There were cases occurring almost every day of even apparently well-to-do men dying where no relatives or friends ever came forward to claim them.

If only there was nothing in his luggage at the Billingham Hotel to betray his identity! For, of course, the police would overhaul this; there lay a possible source of danger.

Yet the man's vanity might—possibly would have prompted him to destroy all traces of that former humble position of which he was so secretly ashamed.

Much of the money of which he had lied Haggard, Grieve had spent in the most reckless manner. This, if marked at all, would be marked with the new names.

His old discarded clothes Grieve would probably have left behind him, Haggard thought, in his boarding house, either to be sent for later or not sent for at all.

A Bold Course

But he must have all his plans ready, in case the proceedings at the inquest resulted in the dead man's identity being disclosed. All eventualities must be guarded against.

He must take a bold course. He would state that he had gone out with Grieve that day; that fact would have to be admitted; but it could not be proved where he went subsequently.

Who of the attendants at the theatre could swear to him? Men who saw hundreds of strange faces every night? He had no cause to look at him closely at the time.

Philip Haggard walked across the room to a little mirror hanging on the wall and looked at his reflection intently. He was like dozens of well-groomed men as he shaven face, close cut hair—there was nothing unusual or striking in his appearance to attract anyone's attention, and he felt profoundly grateful for that fact.

No attendant could swear to him.

Besides, who would dream of suspecting him, the partner in a wealthy, old-fashioned firm? The thing was impossible.

He would merely say that he had left Grieve in the course of the afternoon; that his new manager had come to the office that day, talking noisily and under the influence of drink—his clerks could corroborate the statement—that he took the man out to try to sober him and to prevent him making a disturbance at his place of business; that Grieve had parted abusive, and that Haggard, had dismissed him on the spot, with six months' salary.

Suspicions

A thought suddenly struck Haggard. One could not be too careful about trivial details; he must send that check, addressed to Grieve, at the old rooming house, with a curt confirmation of the dismissal.

He would send it at once. It might subsequently be useful as evidence to bear out his tale.

He took out his check book, made out a check in favor of Mr. Grieve, for three six months' salary and wrote a few curt lines, stating that Grieve's services were dispensed to the old boarding house at Harlem.

Valuable evidence, should Grieve's name come out at the inquest.

The newspapers had already some inkling of the fact that the man in the box had not died from natural causes.

If the proceedings at the inquest revealed death due to chloral, the prominence given in the papers lately to the prevalence of drugging would cause public attention to ascribe this death to the work of a gang of drugging, known to be widely carrying on their nefarious practice.

Suspicion, of course, would fall upon him, Philip Haggard. So long as he did not let his overstrained nerves betray him into a panic he felt safe.

He would go away in a few days' time for a rest and change, to brace him mentally and physically. A long rest and change. When he came back he would no longer start at shadows, see suspicion where there was none, imagine danger.

The message he had received yesterday from the police, asking for a description of his partner, was still lying on his desk.

Haggard wrote out a long description of Robert Wynter, adding that a photograph followed. He rang the bell for a clerk.

"There are to be sent at once," he said, handing the clerk the message and the letter addressed to Grieve.

The chemistograph last night had convinced the man that the narrow escape from steamship had been Grieve, masquerading as Robert Wynter; he was anxious to have a definite assurance from the police that the man who was drowned had been his late partner.

Almost every one int himself believed that Robert Wynter has been on board the foundered ship, such a statement would help to the security of his death.

As by a Miracle

What had become of Robert Wynter?

Much of the mystery had been made clear to Haggard last night. Grieve, he now knew, had never seen Wynter at all, but had built up his fabrication on what he had overheard or guessed from his (Haggard's own half-intimidations.

He had not seen Wynter since the blow was struck. Since Wynter had sailed for Jamaica, where was he? He must be dead. There could be no other explanation.

Perhaps, after being thrust in the tower room, Wynter had partially recovered and had crept away into some other part of the tower or roof.

Haggard had not explored the tower thoroughly when the telephone message parporting to be from Wynter had reached him, and he had rushed home to find that room in the tower empty.

But, of course, the man could not have got out of the building by the same corner as had come by.

But, of course, the man could not have got out of the building by the same corner as had come by.

He would go away in a few days' time for a rest and change, to brace him mentally and physically. A long rest and change. When he came back he would no longer start at shadows, see suspicion where there was none, imagine danger.

The message he had received yesterday from the police, asking for a description of his partner, was still lying on his desk.

Haggard wrote out a long description of Robert Wynter, adding that a photograph followed. He rang the bell for a clerk.

"There are to be sent at once," he said,

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

A MATTER OF JUDGMENT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl and am keeping company with a young man for the past year, and as my folks, as well as myself, in particular, I did not go any place without a chaperon.

Now this young man considers it perfectly proper for me to go out with him alone, as we expect to be engaged soon, and my folks are all away for the Summer, except father and brother, who cannot go with me. DOROTHY.

It is a matter in which you must be guided by your own common sense and the wishes of your parents. There is no harm in your going out with him if you get home by 11 o'clock, nor in having him call on you if he leaves at that hour. The more regard a young girl has for the proprieties the better the esteem in which the public holds her.

A FOOLISH PRACTICE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl and have the negative habit of saying "no" for the last two years. He has a place of business of his own; by chance I happened to get a position two blocks from him. I met him one day and told him where I am working, and he asked me to come in during lunch hour, which I did. Since then he makes a practice to be there every noontime; in fact, he makes no promise that I am going to come in.

Do you think the young man cares for me as he never asked me out?

G. B.

I THINK you made a great mistake in going to his place of business. He does not ask you out because you are willing to do all the running, and he does not have to bother. Let him do the seeking, and do not go to his place of business any more.

Ladies' Nine-Gored Kilt Skirt

No. 5,427.—There is a practical air of smartness and good style about the skirt here pictured that makes it a very desirable model. The plaits may be stitched in like or double depth, and the pattern provides that it may be cut either short or long, as may be desired. A white linen made after this design would be extremely stylish, but other materials, such as mohair, serge, wash and checked suiting are also suitable. The medium size will require 6¼ yards of 44-inch material.

No. 5,427—Sizes for 20, 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30 inches waist measure.

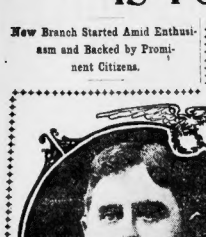
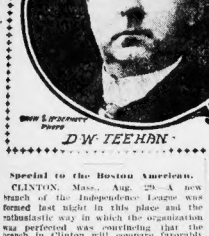
INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE IS FORMED IN CLINTON

New Branch Started Amid Enthusiasm and Backed by Prominent Citizens.



D. W. TEEHAN

JOHN M. O'NEIL



JOHN H. MURPHY.

Beginning Marked by Great Energy and a Promise of Big Membership.

These are the officers elected by the energetic branch of the league just formed in Fitchburg. Mr. Teehan was chosen president, Mr. Murphy secretary, and Mr. O'Neil is chairman of the executive committee.

Special to the Boston American.

CLINTON, Mass., Aug. 29.—A new branch of the Independence League was formed last night in this place and the enthusiastic way in which the organization was perfected was convincing that the branch in Clinton will compare favorably with any in the State. A large number of representative citizens were present, and by their acts and sentiments it was apparent that they are thoroughly believed in the administration of their own affairs. A large membership for the Clinton league is promised in the near future. Everywhere was enthusiastic and each pledged himself to secure many recruits.

A permanent organization was effected with the following officers: President, Thomas B. Finnerty, secretary, Peter F. O'Malley; chairman of executive committee, P. E. Finnerty.

State President William S. Osgood was present and in a general way outlined the purposes of the Independence League of Massachusetts. In conclusion President Osgood said:

"The forces against the people are naturally organized. The people themselves are naturally disorganized. The individual are right upon public questions and when they understand the corrupt methods are wise enough to accept a means which will accomplish them. It has been so in every political movement. The abolition movement was little until the curse of slavery became politically known. Before that time the conservative element in the community paid little attention to it. When, however, the enemies of slavery formed a political organization they received attention and were listened to.

"They compelled attention and dictated the policy of the government, and even directed the path of the national itself. It will be with this great political uprising. The movement which is now being begun throughout the country will demand the respect of even the so-called conservative forces and finally a complete triumph of popular sovereignty will be acknowledged.

"If the principles advocated by the Independence League are properly studied by citizens, as they have been by those who formulated them, they will be found to be conservative in harmony with our fundamental law and resting to the people the healthful rule which were established by Jefferson and his contemporaries."

Frederic Thomas B. Finnerty, one of the best known residents of this section of the State, spoke enthusiastically on the prospects of the new league and welcomed the opportunity of forming a strong branch of the organization in Clinton.

Remarks were also made by Peter L. O'Malley, P. E. Finnerty and many others prominent citizens of Clinton.

The executive committee voted to meet Friday evening to devise plans for an organization; they received attention and were listened to.

BRIDE 70, GAY BRIDEGROOM 80

ATTLEBORO, Aug. 29.—George F. Bicknell, Justice of the peace, says that when Pardon S. Peckam of Coventry, R. I., appeared before him and asked that they be united in marriage, their combined ages exceeded that of any people he had ever joined together. The groom was sixty and the bride seventy.

Mr. Peckam submitted to the parentage of a dozen children. The bride was joyful and affectionate as any maiden in sweet sixteen.

They came to town on an electric car. It is said that there is an inborn thing romance dating back fully half a century, in connection with their union.

The national government should feed all poor children. The Countess of Warwick then says their dietary is the nation's concern. A most spirited plea by one of the most beautiful of the British aristocracy and King Edward's personal friend. In next SUNDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, AUGUST 29, 1906

Mr. Baer, Railroad King, Needs an Education

He Will Get It, He Will Get It THOROUGHLY if He Lives a Few Years Longer

Mr. Baer, agent of the Coal Trust and manager of the Reading Railroad, belongs to the large class of influential Americans who will be forced to attend a kindergarten recently opened by the American people.

Their lack of education is deplorable—but they will be educated thoroughly in time—or at least their descendants, if not they themselves.

One of the most backward pupils in the modern school of education in public opinion is this Mr. Baer.

A long time ago, when the coal strike had caused people to freeze, Mr. Baer showed his peculiar character of mind and heart.

He announced that "God had given the stores of coal to him and his fellows to manage." And he added that the complaining public was "a pack of whining curs."

There was inserted in the Democratic platform of New York State, on the advice of this newspaper, a plank for the operating of coal mines by the government as a solution of the strike, human life being above money.

That frightened the coal mine gentlemen a little; it frightened the Republican party a great deal, AND THE COAL STRIKE WAS SETTLED, BY PUBLIC OPINION, MUCH AGAINST MR. BAER'S WILL.

Now the same Mr. Baer comes along and alleges that laws passed by the people don't make any difference to him. Here is what he says about the rate bill, recently passed by Congress:

"Certainly I do not expect the rate bill to make any change in the methods of the Reading in doing business.

"We shall go ahead just as we are. If we are right, we are right; if we are wrong, we are wrong. But I cannot see that the rate bill throws any light upon the question.

"If any one has succeeded in finding out what it does mean, I have not, at least."

The plain English of Mr. Baer's statement is that he and his friends of the Coal Trust and the Railroad Trust deny the right of the public to control or direct them in any way.

Mr. Baer says, "We shall go ahead just as we are. If we are right, we are right; if we are wrong, we are wrong," etc.

Mr. Baer and his friends WILL NOT go ahead for very long as they are. They may despise this particular rate bill, knowing that it was made half-heartedly by an administration and a Congress not in earnest.

They may be able to treat as a joke the work of the particular Congress that they OWN and that meddled with them only because of public action.

But there will be OTHER Congresses. And Mr. Baer and his friends will find public opinion talking more and more strongly through successive Congresses and successive administrations.

Mr. Baer and his friends will also "find out what it means" when the people put a law on the statute books.

And Mr. Baer, in spite of his solemn statement to the contrary, WILL MAKE CHANGES IN THE METHODS OF THE READING RAILROAD.

After HE has made the changes in the Reading ordered by the law, THE PEOPLE THEMSELVES WILL MAKE ADDITIONAL CHANGES, WHICH WILL INCLUDE THE TAKING OVER OF THAT RAILROAD ON A FAIR PURCHASE BASIS BY THE PEOPLE, and its management by the people and for them. Mr. Baer has a lot to learn. He will learn it.

The Tar of To-day

By James J. Montague

Tobacco in all forms, save that of cigarettes, has been abolished in the British Navy.

WERE gentlemanly sailors of 'Is Majesty's Navee,
In the gallant ship "Insipid" we go furrowin' the sea.
But all the 'orrid 'abits of the rough an' rowdy tars,
Like chewin' quids or smokin' pipes or pullin' on cigars,
We've bloomin' well chucked overboard without no vain regrets,
An' now upon the rollin' foam we're rollin' cigarettes.

Then it's w'iff, w'iff, w'iff,
'Stead o' puff, puff, puff;
For King Edward's gentle sailors
Are not even rude or rough,
An' the proper British Jackie
W'en he wants a tiste o' backy
Finds to w'iff a wisp o' fire
After mess is quite enough.

WE cannot think 'ow Nelson did the fightin' that 'e did,
W'en every man behind a gun was tongueh' of a quid.
W'en all the orficers on deck was chewin' on their snipes
An' all the bo'ns on the watch was blowin' nawsty pipes.
We 'ope we does things better now, for no one ever saw
Us smokin' anythink except a little piper straw.

And it's w'iff, w'iff, w'iff,
'Stead o' puff, puff, puff;
When the 'elm is 'ard a-starboard
An' the border comes to luff,
An' send to Monsoer Paquin for to make our full dress clo'es,
An' say "Oh!" by way o' cussin', so that every larry blokie
Can conduct 'isself consistent with the way 'e's learned to smoke.

So it's w'iff, w'iff, w'iff,
'Stead o' puff, puff, puff;
We don't drink for anythink,
not even grog with duff;
Though our mess an' bunks is forrid,
We would not do nothink 'orrid,
An' as for smoke, a tiste of it
Is really quite enough.

"IF"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

COULD I but touch the hearts of men,
To have them respond, as when
The slaves longed to be free
From the bonds of cruel tyranny;
To be reckoned as God's humanity,
I would have them respond for a cause to-day—

A cause that is worse in many a way;
I would have them answer humanity's need,
I would have them DESTROY monopoly's greed,
With the battleship "JUSTICE" ruling the hour,
With a force that would end FOREVER
Its power.

Hope for the Gift-Givers

By Wex Jones

WHAT is the worst thing about a wedding? Trying to dope out an original kind of present, of course.

So there is great good news, especially for men, from a recent London wedding. The Duchess of Roxburghe, who was once a plain American miss, Miss Goelet, gave a bride of her acquaintance for a wedding gift a complete cigarette outfit—holder, cigarette case, match box and all.

Isn't that great?

Mere man when his friend marries gives him a pipe or a tobacco jar; when a girl he knows is married, then he has to do some doping out. Now everything will be different. Lists of a bride's wedding presents will read:

OLD STYLE.	NEW STYLE.
Six silver spoons.	Cigarette case, box fish knives, six silver of cigars, cigarette spoons, clock, six case, match safe, silver spoons. fan cigarette case, golf knives, six silver clubs, box of cigars, spoons, six silver cigarette case,
spoons.

This will save a whole lot of bother, and the only thing to fear is that the list for the man may have to be revised, and the trouble merely shifted around. Suppose the man cared no more for pipes and tobacco jars, and the wretched giver had to decide between diamond rings, powder puffs, pieces of old lace and peek-a-boo socks. But perish the thought.

A large part of the earth's surface is yet unexplored. The foot of a white man has never trodden vast areas of Central Africa, Central Asia, Central Australia and Central Park. Several intrepid adventurers have penetrated to the great city of Pittsburg, and have brought back specimens of the natives, who have greatly surprised the outside world. Otherwise almost nothing is known of this mysterious city, which is believed to be inhabited entirely by millionaires.

The Recent Treatment Accorded a Leper Was a Disgrace Because Leprosy Is Not Contagious

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

THE treatment accorded George Rossett, an unfortunate leper, from Syria, in his effort to reach his native land, is a disgrace to the Christian civilization of which we boast in America.

This poor creature, according to the reports I have read, has been treated more like a dangerous wild beast than like a suffering human.

An exchange says:

Rossett's arrival in Brunswick, Md., while it inspired fear in all who knew of his presence, excited a sympathy correspondingly great.

He had been without either food or water, and when he climbed from his solitary refuge and pleaded with those who ventured near enough to hear for food and drink, the while he extended a roll of bills, his plea could not be ignored. He was instructed to sit on a pile of ties in the yard of the railroad company.

News that Rossett was in the yard spread like wildfire, and soon a crowd, careful not to go within the danger line of his presence, gathered to see him. Meantime, some one had gone for food and water. When they returned Rossett showed a disposition to leave his post and greet them. The crowd broke and ran, as did those who were taking him succor.

It is a misfortune that our people do not have a larger understanding of the nature of leprosy.

It is not contagious. It is infectious. The poison of the leper must come in contact with the blood of another, or enter the system, to be acquired.

While in Havana, Cuba, two years ago I visited the Leper Hospital in the outskirts of the city, and personally conversed with several of the patients.

A sweet Sister of Charity, formerly of New York, has been a nurse in the hospital for sixteen years.

She told me that the laundry work was not done by lepers, but by people outside, engaged specially for the purpose, and that to her knowledge never one case of infection had resulted.

To touch or handle any object in common with a leper is not dangerous, if there is no abrasion of the skin, no hangnail or scratch through which the poison can be transmitted; even then, if the hands are immediately cleansed, the danger would be slight.

I was told of many cases in Havana where, among the upper classes, leprosy existed in some member of the family for years, and was called by some other name; the victim sitting at the table and associating with his friends until the disease made such ravages that isolation became necessary to conceal its nature from the public.

I personally knew, in the vicinity of my girlhood home, in Wisconsin, a case of leprosy in a family of Norwegians which existed for at least fifteen years. Two brothers lived in the house together, one a confirmed invalid, cared for by the other, who was a day laborer. He did not contract the disease, nor did it spread to any other person in the neighborhood.

The nature of the man's sickness was not known till shortly before his death.

The treatment given this poor Syrian, then, is shameful in the extreme, and should make every intelligent American blush for the ignorance and cruelty existing in our land.

DOES THE MAINE CENTRAL REPUDIATE ITS CONTRACTS?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

On August 13th the writer had occasion to visit Calais, Me., starting from Bangor, Me., on a through train.

I presented mileage book to conductor, who only took out to Washington Junction. Calling his attention to the fact, he said: "I leave at Washington Junction," but offered no further explanation. At Washington Junction the train proceeded, with another conductor and crew. I presented my Maine Central book to second conductor. He informed me I could not use that book on the Washington County railroad; would have to have a ticket or pay cash fare. I asked him if the Washington County railroad was not a part of the Maine Central system or a leased line. He said it was an independent line. Thereupon I paid him a cash fare of $3.70, and received a receipt for same. This was paying at the rate of 3½ cents per mile. My object in securing the cash receipt was to prove that the Maine Central railroad did own and control the Washington County railroad, and had owned same for some time past, as Mr. F. E. Boothby, G. P. A., was also in control of Maine Central railroad, as his signature to all tickets verified.

I further learned that all Washington County railroad conductors, tickets and other matter were shipped direct to the Maine Central railroad offices in Portland, Me. I purchased a ticket No. 1988, signed by F. E. Boothby, general manager, called the ticket agent's attention to the name and asked him: "How is this? I thought F. E. Boothby was now controlling the road." He said it was an old book he was using up. Ticket No. 1988, G. P. A. Burpee, G. P. A., signed, was also explained to me as a book being used by ticket passenger agent. I took this method to verify by books, that the Maine Central railroad operated the Washington County railroad.

The Maine Central's method is to entirely ignore their contract, which in all books issued by them reads: "Good for transportation on the Maine Central railroad and leased lines for as many miles as are represented by attached coupons." This is also signed by F. E. Boothby, G. P. and T. A.

My desire in bringing this matter to your attention is to have it made public through your valuable medium for the benefit of the commercial travelers generally who have been trying to compel the Washington County railroad to recognize their own contracts.

The railroads here, as in most sections, control the Senate. Yours very truly,

Bangor, Me. GEO. S. VAUGHAN.
